Stoney Creek Woman:

Stoney Creek Woman Bridget Moran,1997 The captivating story of Mary John a pioneering Carrier Native whose life on the Stoney Creek reserve in central B C is a capsule history of First Nations life from a unique woman s perspective A mother of twelve Mary endured much tragedy and heartbreak the pangs of racism poverty and the deaths of six children but has survived with extraordinary grace and courage She continues to be a positive role model In 1997 she received the Order of Canada Arsenal Pulp Press website Canada's Residential Schools: The History, Part 1, Origins to 1939 Commission de vérité et réconciliation du Canada,2016-01-01 Between 1867 and 2000 the Canadian government sent over 150 000 Aboriginal children to residential schools across the country Government officials and missionaries agreed that in order to civilize and Christianize Aboriginal children it was necessary to separate them from their parents and their home communities For children life in these schools was lonely and alien Discipline was harsh and daily life was highly regimented Aboriginal languages and cultures were denigrated and suppressed Education and technical training too often gave way to the drudgery of doing the chores necessary to make the schools self sustaining Child neglect was institutionalized and the lack of supervision created situations where students were prey to sexual and physical abusers Legal action by the schools former students led to the creation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada in 2008 The product of over six years of research the Commission s final report outlines the history and legacy of the schools and charts a pathway towards reconciliation Canada s Residential Schools The History Part 1 Origins to 1939 places Canada s residential school system in the historical context of European campaigns to colonize and convert Indigenous people throughout the world In post Confederation Canada the government adopted what amounted to a policy of cultural genocide suppressing spiritual practices disrupting traditional economies and imposing new forms of government Residential schooling quickly became a central element in this policy The destructive intent of the schools was compounded by chronic underfunding and ongoing conflict between the federal government and the church missionary societies that had been given responsibility for their day to day operation A failure of leadership and resources meant that the schools failed to control the tuberculosis crisis that gripped the schools for much of this period Alarmed by high death rates Aboriginal parents often refused to send their children to the schools leading the government adopt ever more coercive attendance regulations While parents became subject to ever more punitive regulations the government did little to regulate discipline diet fire safety or sanitation at the schools By the period s end the government was presiding over a nation wide series of firetraps that had no clear educational goals and were economically dependent on the unpaid labour of underfed and often sickly children Colonizing Bodies Mary-Ellen Kelm,2011-11-01 Recent debates about the health of First Nations peoples have drawn a flurry of public attention and controversy and have placed the relationship between Aboriginal well being and reserve locations and allotments in the spotlight Aboriginal access to medical care and the transfer of funds and responsibility for health from the federal government to individual bands and tribal councils are also bones of contention Comprehensive discussion of such issues however has often been hampered by a lack of historical analysis Promising to remedy this is Mary Ellen Kelm's Colonizing Bodies which examines the impact of colonization on Aboriginal health in British Columbia during the first half of the twentieth century Using postmodern and postcolonial conceptions of the body and the power relations of colonization Kelm shows how a pluralistic medical system evolved She begins by exploring the ways in which Aboriginal bodies were materially affected by Canadian Indian policy which placed restrictions on fishing and hunting allocated inadequate reserves forced children into unhealthy residential schools and criminalized Indigenous healing She goes on to consider how humanitarianism and colonial medicine were used to pathologize Aboriginal bodies and institute a regime of doctors hospitals and field matrons all working to encourage assimilation Finally Kelm reveals how Aboriginal people were able to resist and alter these forces in order to preserve their own cultural understanding of their bodies disease and medicine This detailed but highly readable ethnohistory draws on archival sources archeological findings fieldwork and oral history interviews with First Nations elders from across British Columbia Kelm's cross disciplinary approach results in an important and accessible book that will be of interest not only to academic historians and medical anthropologists but also to those concerned with Aboriginal health and healing today

A Quiet Woman in a Quiet House Lola Latreille, 2012-12-14 A collection of poems written by a woman born in 1930 She has seen many changes in her lifetime and often makes comments about contemporary life Of course she is opinionated but feels that if you have reached this age and do not have opinions what in the world have you been thinking about The author has noticed that although children who grew up in the Depression era were living in desperately hard times they often have fond memories of their old neighborhoods and those times She has concluded that the good old days are any old days when we were young and lived in childhoods neighborhood Their parents were the ones who experienced the hardships Most of the poems have been published in Vintage Views which is the newspaper published by the Older Persons Commission of Rochester Michigan which is a city near the authors home It is widely distributed in the city and she feels fortunate to be on the staff

Judgement at Stoney Creek Bridget Moran, 2002-07-01 Judgement at Stoney Creek has been released in a new edition of an aboriginal studies classic an engrossing look at the investigation into the hit and run death of Coreen Thomas a young Native woman in her ninth month of pregnancy at the wheels of a car driven by a young white man in central BC The resulting inquest into what might have been just another small town tragedy turned into an inquiry of racial tensions both implicit and explicit that surfaced not only on country backroads but in the courtroom as well revealing a dual system of justice that treated whites and aboriginals differently First published in 1990 Judgement at Stoney Creek has been hailed for its moving and deeply personal depiction of a controversial subject that continues to make news today how the justice system has failed Canada's aboriginal people This new edition includes a new preface by the author who returns to the area to discover how much racial relations and the relationship between Natives and the justice system have changed Women and the White Man's God Myra Rutherdale,2007-10-01 Between 1860 and 1940 Anglican missionaries were very active in northern British Columbia Yukon and the Northwest Territories To date histories of this mission work have largely focused on men while the activities of women either as missionary wives or as missionaries in their own right have been seen as peripheral at best if not completely overlooked Based on diaries letters and mission correspondence Women and the White Man's God is the first comprehensive examination of women's roles in northern domestic missions The status of women in the Anglican Church gender relations in the mission field and encounters between Aboriginals and missionaries are carefully scrutinized Arguing that the mission encounter challenged colonial hierarchies Rutherdale expands our understanding of colonization at the intersection of gender race and religion This book is a critical addition to scholarship in women's Canadian Native and religious studies and complements a growing body of literature on gender and empire in Canada and elsewhere On the Cusp of Contact Jean Barman,2020-03-28 The ways in which we can redress the past are many and varied writes Jean Barman and it is up to each of us to act as best we can The seventeen essays collected here originally published between 1996 and 2013 make a valuable contribution toward this laudable goal With a wide range of source material from archival and documentary sources to oral histories Barman pieces together stories of individuals and groups disadvantaged in white settler society because of their gender race and or social class Working to recognize past actors that have been underrepresented in mainstream histories Barman's focus is BC on the cusp of contact The essays in this collection include fascinating though largely forgotten life stories of the frontier that space between contact and settlement where for a brief moment anything seemed possible This volume featuring over thirty archival photographs and illustrations makes these important and very readable essays accessible to a broader audience for the first time Children, Teachers and Schools in the History of British Columbia Jean Barman,Mona Gleason,2003 This new edition explores the myriad ways that education broadly defined molds each of us in profound and enduring ways Laid against the supporting scaffolding of modern critical theory the chapters offer cutting edge perspectives of going to school in British Columbia How has education been tailored by race class gender How do representations of schools and schooling change over time and whose interests are served What echoes of current tensions can we hear in the past The book offers a glimpse of the deep contradictions inherent in an experience that we all share Annual Report Presbyterian Church in the U.S. Executive Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief,1923 Annual Report of the Northwestern Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church Methodist Episcopal Church. Makúk John Sutton Lutz,2009-01-01 John Lutz traces Aboriginal people s involvement in the new economy and their displacement from it from the arrival of the first Europeans to the 1970s Drawing on an extensive array of oral histories manuscripts newspaper accounts biographies and statistical analysis Lutz shows that Aboriginal people flocked to the workforce and prospered in the late nineteenth century He argues that the roots of today's widespread unemployment and welfare dependency date only from the 1950s when deliberate and inadvertent policy choices what Lutz terms the white problem drove Aboriginal people out of the capitalist wage and subsistence economies offering them welfare as compensation Decisions on Geographic Names in the United States United States Board on Geographic Names,1969 Minutes Presbyterian Church in the U.S. General Assembly,1917 And on that Farm He Had a Wife Monda M. Halpern,2001 Focusing on white Anglo Protestant farm women in southern and southwestern Ontario Monda Halpern argues that many Ontario farm women were indeed feminist and that this feminism was more progressive than their conservative image has suggested In And On That Farm He Had a Wife Halpern demonstrates that Ontario farm women adhered to social feminism a feminism that focused on values and experiences associated with women and that emphasized the differences between women and men promoting female specificity solidarity and separatism These principles were informed by farm women's overlapping roles as wives and unpaid farm labourers
