The American Classics Denis Donoghue, 2008-10-01 How is a classic book to be defined How much time must elapse before a work may be judged a classic And among all the works of American literature which deserve the designation In this provocative new book Denis Donoghue essays to answer these questions He presents his own short list of relative classics works whose appeal may not be universal but which nonetheless have occupied an important place in our culture for more than a century These books have survived the abuses of time neglect contempt indifference willful readings excesses of praise and hyperbole Donoghue bestows the term classic on just five American works Melville's Moby Dick Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter Thoreau's Walden Whitman's Leaves of Grass and

Twain's Adventures of Huckleberry Finn Examining each in a separate chapter he discusses how the writings have been received and interpreted and he offers his own contemporary readings suggesting for example that in the post 9/11 era Moby Dick may be rewardingly read as a revenge tragedy Donoghue extends an irresistible invitation to open the pages of these American classics again demonstrating with wit and acuity how very much they have to say to us now His Other Half Wendy Lesser, 1992 Wendy Lesser counters the reigning belief that male artists inevitably misrepresent women She builds this case through inquiry into many unexpected and germane subjects Marilyn Monroe's walk for instance or the dwarf manicurist Miss Mowcher in David Copperfield or the shoulder blades of Degas bathers Placing such particulars within the framework of Plato's myth of the divided beings and psychoanalytic concepts of narcissism Lesser sets out before the reader an art that responds to and even attempts to overcome division Final Acts Tom Ratekin, 2010-07-02 Writers facing death offer a rare glimpse into human mortality they have the unusual opportunity to craft the closing chapter of their life stories Final Acts explores memoirs of terminal illness and shows a paradoxical pattern where the diagnosis of terminal illness evokes not despair but a new freedom and richness in life The memoirs analyzed by Allon White Harold Brodkey Gillian Rose and Derek Jarman provide insight into the experience of radical contingency that an awareness of mortality brings Tom Ratekin engages the concept of traversing the fantasy elaborated by Jacques Lacan and Slavoj Žižek to argue that the new richness in life each of these memoirists experiences arises from the abandonment of a particular fantasy that guided his or her earlier work a fantasy that both protected and inhibited the memoirist Freed from convention these writers while close to death can reinterpret the stories presented in their earlier work and gain new perspectives on their worlds and existence

The Object Stares Back James Elkins, 1997 A study on how our eyes function with our brains examines the irrational elements of physical sight and concludes that human seeing transforms both the viewer and the object being viewed The Measure of Merit John Carson, 2025-10-28 A wide ranging account of American and French understandings of merit talent and intelligence over the past two centuries How have modern democracies squared their commitment to equality with their fear that disparities in talent and intelligence might be natural persistent and consequential John Carson tells the fascinating story of how two nations wrestled scientifically with human inequalities and their social and political implications Surveying a broad array of political tracts philosophical treatises scientific works and journalistic writings Carson chronicles the gradual embrace of the IQ version of intelligence in the United States while in France the birthplace of the modern intelligence test expert judgment was consistently prized above such quantitative measures He also reveals the crucial role that determinations of and contests over merit have played in both societies they have helped to organize educational systems justify racial hierarchies classify army recruits and direct individuals onto particular educational and career paths A contribution to both the history of science and intellectual history The Measure of Merit illuminates the shadow languages of inequality that have haunted the American and French republics since their inceptions The Continuum Encyclopedia of

disabilities and the physical and psychological pains of treatment especially when combined with thoughts of further deterioration and imminent death defy the theoretical formulations of identity and alter the definition of autobiography itself Avrahami investigates an array of autobiographical testimonies of terminal illness ranging from Harold Brodkey's poignant account of his struggle with AIDS to Hannah Wilke's and Jo Spence's gripping self portraits of cancer By challenging the artificial and contrived skepticism that critics and theorists bring to their concepts of the self the author argues these illness narratives constitute an invasion of the real confronting the notions of self representation and self invention on which current autobiographical studies are based The author's examinations of these moving memoirs and photographs will engage not only the growing field of disability studies but also a more general readership interested in the transition that occurs when one's body suddenly falls out of step with one's mind
