The Reckoning Eleanor Heartney, Helaine Posner, Nancy Princenthal, Sue Scott, 2014-05-12 The authors of After the Revolution return with an incisive study of the work of contemporary women artists In After the Revolution the authors concluded that The battles may not all have been won but barricades are gradually coming down and work proceeds on all fronts in glorious profusion Now with The Reckoning authors Heartney Posner Princenthal and Scott bring into focus the accomplishments of 24 acclaimed international women artists born since 1960 who have benefited from the groundbreaking efforts of their predecessors The book is organized in four thematic sections Bad Girls profiles artists whose work represents an assault on conventional notions of gender and racial difference History Lessons offers reflections on the self in the context of history and globalization Spellbound focuses on women's embrace of the irrational subjective and surreal while Domestic Disturbances takes on women's conflicted relationship to home family and security Written in lively prose and fully illustrated throughout this book gives an informed account of the wonderful diversity of recent contemporary art by women An indispensable contribution to the literature on contemporary art by women Whitney Chadwick author of Women Art and Society In the 2007 book After the Revolution Women Who Transformed Contemporary Art the authors set a new standard in documenting and evaluating the work of a dozen key women artists spanning generations between the 1960s to the 2000s The beat goes on with the appearance of The Reckoning written by the same authors in the same accessible scholarly style but reflecting important historical changes over the past decade and more. In line with the increased presence of women in mainstream art, the book includes twice as many artists as its predecessor. And its global reach has expanded vastly stretching from Europe and the Americas to Africa and China. Holland Cotter, The New York Times, 2009. Teresa Margolles and the Pathology of Death Oriana Baddeley, Chelsea College of Art and Design, 2009. Arts of Healing Arleen Ionescu, Maria Margaroni, 2020-06-22.

This book occurs at the intersection of philosophy, critical theory, psychoanalysis, and the visual arts. Each chapter looks at art produced in various traumatogenic cultures: detention centres, post-Holocaust film, autobiography, and many more. Other chapters look at the Juarez femicides, the production of collective memory, makeshift memorials, acts of forgiveness, and contemporary forms of trauma. The book proposes new ways of thinking trauma, foregrounding the possibility of healing and the task that the critical humanities has to play in this healing. Where is its place in an increasingly terror-haunted world where personal and collective trauma is as much of an everyday occurrence as it is incomprehensible? What has become known as the classical model of trauma has foregrounded the unrepresentability of the traumatic event. New revisionist approaches seek to move beyond an aporetic understanding of trauma, investigating both intersubjective and intrasubjective psychic processes of healing. Traumatic memory is not always verbal, and iconic forms of communication are part of the arts of healing.

Teresa Margolles Patrice Giasson, 2015-07-11. Catalog for the exhibition Teresa Margolles: We Have a Common Thread presented at the Neuberger Museum of Art, Purchase College, SUNY, from July 12 to October 11, 2015, and curated by Patrice Giasson, the Alex Gordon Associate Curator of the Art of the Americas. Teresa Margolles has spent the last two decades exploring socio-political issues related to violent deaths in Mexico, such as the anonymity surrounding hundreds of unidentified bodies in Mexico's central morgue, the unprecedented violent nature of crimes resulting from the drug war, the massive disappearance of women in Ciudad Juarez, and more intimate matters such as messages left to relatives by people who committed suicide. Teresa Margolles: We Have a Common Thread marks a new trajectory in the artist's career. For the works included in this project, Margolles collaborated with native embroiderers from Guatemala, Panama, Nicaragua, Brazil, Mexico, and the United States who shared her concerns about violence, particularly against women, as well as the daily violence faced by the African American community today. After explaining her vision for the project, Margolles provided each group with fabrics that had been stained through contact with bodies of people who had suffered violent deaths. She invited the embroiderers to create patterns on the discolored fabrics as a way to trigger a conversation on the violence and social problems plaguing their own communities. These conversations were video-recorded and are included in the catalog. Each section also includes a text by either the curator or the collaborator who has assisted Margolles during the making and displaying of a work in different parts of the Americas. The catalog includes several illustrations of the works and pictures taken during the confection of the works.

Latin American Culture and the Limits of the Human Lucy Bollington, Paul

Merchant,2020-03-18 This volume explores works from Latin American literary and visual culture that question what it means to be human and examine the ways humans and nonhumans shape one another In doing so it provides new perspectives on how the region challenges and adds to global conversations about humanism and the posthuman Contributors identify posthumanist themes across a range of different materials including an anecdote about a plague of rabbits in Historia de las Indias by Spanish historian Bartolom de las Casas photography depicting desert landscapes at the site of Brazil's War of Canudos and digital and installation art portraying victims of state sponsored and drug violence in Colombia and Mexico The essays illuminate how these cultural texts broach the limits between life and death human and animal technology and the body and people and the environment They also show that these works use the category of the human to address issues related to race gender inequality necropolitics human rights and the role of the environment Latin American Culture and the Limits of the Human demonstrates that by focusing on the boundary between the human and nonhuman writers artists and scholars can open up new dimensions to debates about identity and difference the local and the global and colonialism and power Contributors Natalia Aguilar V squez Emily Baker Lucy Bollington Liliana Ch vez D az Carlos Fonseca Niall H D Geraghty Edward King Rebecca Kosick Nicole Delia Legnani Paul Merchant Joanna Page Joey Whitfield
