Relational Database Index Design and the Optimizers Tapio Lahdenmaki, Mike Leach, 2005-09-15 Improve the performance of relational databases with indexes designed for today's hardware Over the last few years hardware and software have advanced beyond all recognition so it's hardly surprising that relational database performance now receives much less attention Unfortunately the reality is that the improved hardware hasn't kept pace with the ever increasing quantity of data processed today Although disk packing densities have increased enormously making storage costs extremely low and sequential read very fast random reads are still painfully slow Many of the old design recommendations are therefore no longer valid the optimal point of indexing has come a long way Consequently many of the old problems haven't actually gone away they have simply changed their appearance This book provides an easy but effective approach to the design of indexes and tables Using lots of examples and case studies the authors describe how the DB2 Oracle and SQL Server optimizers determine how to access data and how CPU and response times for the resulting access paths can be quickly estimated This enables comparisons to be made of the various designs and helps you choose available choices for the most appropriate design This book is intended for anyone who wants to understand the issues of SQL performance or how to design tables and indexes effectively With this title readers with many years of experience of relational systems will be able to better grasp the implications that have been brought into play by the introduction of new hardware Design, 1978

Optimized Design of Structural Frames Won-Kee Hong, 2024-10-16 This book introduces an auto design based optimization for building frames using an artificial neural network ANN based Lagrange method and novel genetic algorithm GA The work of great mathematician Joseph Louis Lagrange and ANNs are merged to identify parameters that optimize structural frames of reinforced concrete prestressed concrete and steel frames subject to one or more design constraints New features for enhancing conventional GA are also demonstrated to optimize structural frames New features for optimizing multiple design targets of the building frames are highlighted while design requirements imposed by codes are automatically satisfied Chapters provide readers with an understanding of how both ANN based and novel GA based structural optimization can be implemented in holistically optimizing designated design targets for building structural frames guiding readers toward more rational designs that is consistent with American Institute of Steel Construction AISC and American Concrete Institute ACI standards ANN based holistic designs of multi story frames in general and reinforced concrete prestressed concrete and steel frames in particular are introduced This book suits structural engineers architects and graduate students in the field of building frame designs and is heavily illustrated with color figures and tables

Reducing CO₂ and other emissions from shipping Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environmental Audit Committee, 2009-06 The emission of greenhouse gases from shipping is a serious problem for international climate change policy and they cannot be allowed to grow uncontrolled The International Maritime Organization IMO has estimated that international shipping was responsible for annual emissions of around 843 million tonnes of carbon dioxide MtCO₂ in 2007 or around 3 per cent of total man made carbon emissions This report follows up an earlier inquiry Reducing carbon emissions from transport HC 981 I 9th report of session 2005 06 ISBN 9780215030412 and examines what efforts the Government is making in three main respects a negotiations to tackle shipping emissions at an international level within the IMO the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change and the EU b measures by which the UK is to take into account its share of international shipping emissions in domestic carbon budgets through the Climate Change Act 2008 and c support in the UK for operational improvements and technological R D aimed at reducing emissions from shipping Very little progress has been made at the international level A lack of urgency shown by industrialised nations and blocking actions by developing economies share the blame The Government admits that the current calculation of the UK s share of international shipping emissions is an underestimate and should consult on how to improve the methodology it uses to calculate the UK's share of international shipping emissions Government support for research and development should focus on technologies that can be retrofitted to existing ships and offer a genuine alternative to fossil fuels such as hydrogen fuel cells There should be drastic acceleration of R D into low and zero carbon propulsion systems Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations United States.
