These are useful in identifying general trends and values associated to specific management interventions, especially in relation to the management of the environment.

What is the best way to do this? The answer is: it depends on the situation. In some cases, a simple linear regression might be sufficient. In other cases, a more complex model might be needed. The key is to choose the model that best fits the data and the research question.

These "Wildcat" Human Resources were developed by the newly reorganized Agency (1988 through 1993) mainly in response to a then-pending restructuring act. The service is fully committed with tonight's culture and (historically) on a much more easily defined and understood (albeit) national government.
