Stone Tools And Society Working Stone In Neolithic And Bronze Age Britain:

Stone Tools & Society Mark Edmonds, 2012-11-12 Stone tools are the most durable and in some cases the only category of material evidence that students of prehistory have at their disposal Exploring the changing character and context of stone tools in Neolithic and Bronze Age Britain Mark Edmonds examines the varied ways in which these artefacts were caught up in the fabric of past social life Key themes include stone tool procurement and production the nature of technological traditions stone tools and social identity the nature of exchange and the significance of depositional practices As well as contributing to current debate about the interpretation of material culture Dr Edmonds uses the evidence of stone tools to reconsider some of the major horizons of change in later British prehistory From the production of tools at spectacularly located quarries to their ceremonial burial or destruction at ritual monuments this well illustrated study demonstrates that our understanding of these varied and sometimes enigmatic artefacts requires a concern with their social as well as their practical dimensions

The Oxford Handbook of Neolithic Europe Chris Fowler, Jan Harding, Daniela Hofmann, 2015-03-26 The Neolithic a period in which the first sedentary agrarian communities were established across much of Europe has been a key topic of archaeological research for over a century However the variety of evidence across Europe the range of languages in which research is carried out and the way research traditions in different countries have developed makes it very difficult for both students and specialists to gain an overview of continent wide trends The Oxford Handbook of Neolithic Europe provides the first comprehensive geographically extensive thematic overview of the European Neolithic from Iberia to Russia and from Norway to Malta offering both a general introduction and a clear exploration of key issues and current debates surrounding evidence and interpretation Chapters written by leading experts in the field examine topics such as the movement of plants animals ideas and people including recent trends in the application of genetics and isotope analyses cultural change from the first appearance of farming to the first metal artefacts domestic architecture subsistence material culture monuments and burial and other treatments of the dead In doing so the volume also considers the history of research and sets out agendas and themes for future work in the field

Mining and Quarrying in Neolithic Europe Anne Teather, Peter Topping, Jon Baczowski, 2019-06-30 The social processes involved in acquiring flint and stone in the Neolithic began to be considered over thirty years ago promoting a more dynamic view of past extraction processes Whether by quarrying mining or surface retrieval the geographic source locations of raw materials and their resultant archaeological sites have been approached from different methodological and theoretical perspectives In recent years this has included the exploration of previously undiscovered sites refined radiocarbon dating comparative ethnographic analysis and novel analytical approaches to stone tool manufacture and provenancing The aim of this volume in the Neolithic Studies Group Papers is to explore these new findings on extraction sites and their products How did the acquisition of raw materials fit into other aspects of Neolithic life and social networks How did these activities merge in creating material items that underpinned cosmology status and identity What are the geographic similarities constraints and variables between the various raw materials and how does the practise of stone extraction in the UK relate to wider extractive traditions in northwestern Europe Eight papers address these questions and act as a useful overview of the current state of research on the topic

Woodland in the Neolithic of Northern Europe Gordon Noble, 2017-02-15 The Neolithic period is one of the great transformations in human history when agriculture first began and dramatic changes occurred in human society These changes occurred in environments that were radically different to those that exist today and in northern Europe many landscapes would have been dominated by woodland Yet wood and woodland rarely figures in the minds of many archaeologists and it plays no part in the traditional Three Age system that has defined the frameworks of European prehistory This book explores how human environment relations altered with the beginnings of farming and how the Neolithic in northern Europe was made possible through new ways of living in and understanding the environment Drawing on a broad range of evidence from pollen data and stone axes to the remains of timber monuments and settlements the book analyzes the relationship between people their material culture and their woodland environment The Chambered Tombs of the Isle of Man Audrey

Henshall,2017-11-17 This is the first book ever devoted to the chambered tombs of the Isle of Man and though there are no more than nine surviving monuments they are of considerable interest and importance because of the central location of the island in the north Irish Sea where cultural influences and traditions of tomb building are mixed The North Pennines
