

MONTREAL IN THE LITERARY IMAGINATION

STORIES ON STREETS

BRYAN DEMCHINSKY AND ELAINE KALMAN NAVES

I may drive into the poor neighborhoods that spread west from the downtown. Made narrow by winter, the streets were lined by snowbound parked cars in igloos. Row houses were crammed together, with a gap between two- and three-story flats with crooked exterior staircases made of wrought-iron railings and worn wood steps against the sidewalks. Some entrances had been boarded by boards, others had been abandoned and the building outside of snow was piled in different directions with time and ice, and windows were sealed by paper and old newspaper to keep draughts. At the end of Urbain was one of five working-class ghetto streets between the Main and Park Avenue.

To a middle-class stranger, it was the first five streets could be so interchangeable. On each corner a store, a grocery, and a fruit store. Outside staircases everywhere. Windows, wooden ones, rusty and rickety ones. An endless repetition of...peeling balconies and waste making the occasional gap here and there. But, as we boys knew, this street between the Main and Park Avenue represented subtle differences in income. No two cold-water flats were alike and no two streets were the same either....

Of the five streets, St. Urbain
