mischance it was sent to an eminent expert in Political Economy who never suspecting any error took the book for the text of an interesting essay on the economics of the blameless Hyperboreans Mr Dayrell's Folk Stories from Southern Nigeria appeal to the anthropologist within me no less than to the lover of what children and older people call Fairy Tales The stories are full of mentions of strange institutions as well as of rare adventures I may be permitted to offer some running notes and comments on this mass of African curiosities from the crowded lumber room of the native mind I The Tortoise with a Pretty Daughter The story like the tales of the dark native tribes of Australia rises from that state of fancy by which man draws at least for purposes of fiction no line between himself and the lower animals Why should not the fair heroine Adet daughter of the tortoise be the daughter of human parents The tale would be none the less interesting and a good deal more credible to the mature intelligence But the ancient fashion of animal parentage is presented It may have originated like the stories of the Australians at a time when men were totemists when every person had a bestial or vegetable family name and when to account for these hereditary names stories of descent from a supernatural bestial primeval race were invented In the fables of the world speaking animals human in all but outward aspect are the characters The fashion is universal among savages it descends to the Buddha's jataka or parables to Aesop and La Fontaine There could be no such fashion if fables had originated among civilised human beings
