Donald C. Wilson

Terminal Candor:

Terminal Candor Donald C. Wilson, 1978 Embodiment James B. Nelson, Few would doubt that this is a time of transition in our understanding of human sexuality The confusion about sexual morals and mores is the more obvious evidence of this But there is something else For too long the bulk of Christian reflection about sexuality has asked an essentially one directional question what does Christian faith have to say about our lives as sexual beings The Aging Family Terry Hargrave, Suzanne Midori Hanna, 2013-06-17 As the population of the United States ages and the lifespan increases so does the number of living generations The mental health care delivery system therefore faces new challenges The United States is heading into the 21st century with multigenerational families now commonplace with up to four or five generations co existing at the same time And each generation is forced to deal with its own developmental transitions as well as complex cross generational issues When a therapist steps into this situation his or her role has to take on board the complexity of the whole family system This text highlights the issues that hold families together and often tear them apart It offers core perspectives that seek to make the work of intervention easier and more effective for the clinician Whether the therapist is called upon to intervene on behalf of elder members to deal with issues such as depression or to step in when younger members are trying to determine how best to provide eldercare the perspectives presented in The Aging Family aim to enrich the strategies used Speaking for the Dying Susan P. Shapiro, 2019-06-12 Seven in ten Americans over the age of age of sixty who require medical decisions in the final days of their life lack the capacity to make them For many of us our biggest life and death decisions literally will therefore be made by someone else They will decide whether we live or die between long life and quality of life whether we receive heroic interventions in our final hours and whether we die in a hospital or at home They will determine whether our wishes are honored and choose between fidelity to our interests and what is best for themselves or others Yet despite their critical role we know remarkably little about how our loved ones decide for us Speaking for the Dying tells their story drawing on daily observations over more than two years in two intensive care units in a diverse urban hospital From bedsides hallways and conference rooms you will hear in their own words how physicians really talk to families and how they respond You will see how decision makers are selected the interventions they weigh in on the information they seek and evaluate the values and memories they draw on the criteria they weigh the outcomes they choose the conflicts they become embroiled in and the challenges they face Observations also provide insight into why some decision makers authorize one aggressive intervention after the next while others do not even on behalf of patients with similar problems and prospects And they expose the limited role of advance directives in structuring the process decision makers follow or the outcomes that result Research has consistently found that choosing life or death for another is one of the most difficult decisions anyone can face sometimes haunting families for decades This book shines a bright light on a role few of us will escape and offers steps that patients and loved ones health care providers lawyers and policymakers could undertake before it is too late

The Inner Life of the Dying Person Allan Kellehear, 2014-05-27 This unique book recounts the experience of facing one's death solely from the dying person's point of view rather than from the perspective of caregivers, survivors or rescuers. Such unmediated access challenges assumptions about the emotional and spiritual dimensions of dying, showing readers that along with suffering, loss, anger, sadness and fear, we can also feel courage, love, hope, reminiscence, transcendence, transformation and even happiness as we die. A work that is at once psychological, sociological and philosophical, this book brings together testimonies of those dying from terminal illness, old age, sudden injury or trauma, acts of war and the consequences of natural disasters and terrorism. It also includes statements from individuals who are on death row, in death camps or planning suicide. Each form of dying addressed highlights an important set of emotions and narratives that often eclipses stereotypical renderings of dying and reflects the numerous contexts in which this journey can occur outside of hospitals, nursing homes and hospices. Chapters focus on common emotional themes linked to dying, expanding and challenging them through first person accounts and analyses of relevant academic and clinical literature in psycho-oncology, palliative care, gerontology, military history, anthropology, sociology, cultural and religious studies, poetry and fiction. The result is an all-encompassing investigation into an experience that will eventually include us all and is more surprising and profound than anyone can imagine.

Family Re-union Robert Kuttner, Sharland Trotter, 2002 In this relevant new book, a journalist husband and his psychologist wife offer wise and inspiring advice to middle-aged adults on how to have more meaningful relationships with their adult children and elderly parents.

Dying of Cancer Allan Kellehear, 1990 First Published in 1990 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis, an information company.
