The Decision Science Process Thad B. Green, Sang M. Lee, Walter B. Newsom, 1978 Memoirs of the Entomological Society of Canada Entomological Society of Canada (1951- ), 1988 Integrating Social and Behavioral Sciences Within the Weather Enterprise National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Human-Systems Integration, Board on Environmental Change and Society, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Committee on Advancing Social and Behavioral Science Research and Application Within the Weather Enterprise, 2018-02-05 Our ability to observe and forecast severe weather events has improved markedly over the past few decades Forecasts of snow and ice storms hurricanes and storm surge extreme heat and other severe weather events are made with greater accuracy geographic specificity and lead time to allow people and communities to take appropriate protective measures Yet hazardous weather continues to cause loss of life and result in other preventable social costs There is growing recognition that a host of social and behavioral factors affect how we prepare for observe predict respond to and are impacted by weather hazards For example an individual s response to a severe weather event may depend on their understanding of the forecast prior experience with severe weather concerns about their other family members or property their capacity to take the recommended protective actions and numerous other factors Indeed it is these factors that can determine whether or not a potential hazard becomes an actual disaster Thus it is essential to bring to bear expertise in the social and behavioral sciences SBS including disciplines such as anthropology communication demography economics geography political science psychology and sociology to understand how people s knowledge experiences perceptions and attitudes shape their responses to weather risks and to understand how human cognitive and social dynamics affect the forecast process itself Integrating Social and Behavioral Sciences Within the Weather Enterprise explores and provides guidance on the challenges of integrating social and behavioral sciences within the weather enterprise It assesses current SBS activities describes the potential value of improved integration of SBS and barriers that impede this integration develops a research agenda and identifies infrastructural and institutional arrangements for successfully pursuing SBS weather research and the transfer of relevant findings to operational settings

Fuzzy Decision Analysis: Multi Attribute Decision Making Approach Farhad Hosseinzadeh Lotfi, Tofigh Allahviranloo, Witold Pedrycz, Mohammadreza Shahriari, Hamid Sharafi, Somayeh Razipour GhalehJough, 2023-11-24 Authored by a leading expert in the field this book introduces an innovative methodology that harnesses the power of fuzzy logic to enhance decision making in multi attribute scenarios In a world of complexity and uncertainty effective decision making is paramount Springer proudly presents a cutting edge publication that revolutionizes decision analysis Fuzzy Decision Analysis Multi attribute Decision Making Approach This book stands at the forefront of decision analysis introducing the integration of fuzzy logic into multi attribute decision making It is a transformative journey into the realm of advanced decision analysis It book not only equips you with the knowledge to comprehend the theoretical underpinnings but also empowers you to apply these insights in practical scenarios This book serves as your indispensable companion Its comprehensive coverage serves as a beacon guiding you through the intricate maze of fuzzy logic and multi attribute decision making ultimately empowering you to embrace innovation and master the art of making well informed decisions in an ever changing world Augmenting Employee Trust and Cooperation Andrei O. J. Kwok, Motoki Watabe, Pervaiz K. Ahmed, 2021-06-01 This book is an essential guide for academics and practitioners to understand employees differences in personality and how best to motivate them accordingly The authors provide an in depth perspective of how organizations can better prepare for the new realities of the workplace Amidst the war for talent and a continually evolving workplace that has reduced employee psychological attachment employees prefer to be treated as individuals with the expectation of individual recognition and reward The authors draw from their personal corporate and research experience by combining interdisciplinary perspectives organizational behavior human resource management psychology sociology economics to offer holistic insights into individual expectancy and motivation integral to a successful employer employee interaction Interestingly research remains lacking on the effects of excessive extrinsic rewards on trust and cooperation Hence this book fulfills significant gaps in vital areas that existing studies have not yet sufficiently addressed These areas are psychological contract excessive extrinsic rewards and individual differences in personality locus of control and general trust The authors use scenario based laboratory experiments to examine the moderating effects of locus of control and general trust that underscore employee expectations The differential effects contribute to insight on behavioral outcomes in the workplace that result from employee perception personality and intention towards the provision of rewards Consequently the book dispels the discrepancies between economists and psychologists about the efficacy of rewards Findings demonstrate that although excessive extrinsic rewards augment all employees trust and cooperation it is vital for employers to reward selectively those who are most deserving Findings offer a deeper understanding of the saliency efficacy and judiciousness of excessive extrinsic rewards Employers will benefit by understanding how best to tailor rewards to motivate each employee
