Imagining the American Jewish Community Jack Wertheimer, 2007 A lively collection of sixteen essays on the many ways American Jews have imagined and constructed communities Hollywood and the End of the Cold War Bryn Upton, 2014-08-26 From the late 1940s until the early 1990s the Cold War was perhaps the most critical and defining aspect of American culture influencing television music and movies among other forms of popular entertainment Films in particular were at the center of the battle for the hearts and minds of the American public Throughout this period the Cold War influenced what movies got produced how such movies were made and how audiences understood the films they watched In the post Cold War era some genres of film suffered from the shift in our national narratives while others were quickly reimagined for an audience with different political and social fears In Hollywood and the End of the Cold War Signs of Cinematic Change Bryn Upton compares films from the late Cold War era with movies of similar themes from the post Cold War era In this volume Upton pays particular attention to shifts in narrative that reflect changes in American culture attitudes and ideas In exploring how the absence of the Cold War has changed the way we understand and interpret film this volume seeks to answer several key questions such as Has the end of the Cold War altered how we tell our stories Has it changed how we perceive ourselves In what ways has our popular culture been affected by the absence of this once dominant presence With its focus on themes that are central to the concerns of many historians including civil religion social fracture and the culture wars Hollywood and the End of the Cold War will serve as a useful tool for those seeking to integrate film into the classroom as well as for film scholars exploring representations of sociopolitical change on screen

In Conflict No Longer Irene Taviss Thomson, 2000 Drawing on social criticism self help manuals and the social scientific analysis of American character In Conflict No Longer examines American thinking about individualism conformity and community from 1920 through 1995 Taviss Thomson's analysis reveals a basic shift in American culture from a belief that the individual is necessarily in conflict with society and that the self chafes against the constraints imposed by society to a belief that the self is expressed in the groups relationships and subcultures that help shape it Taviss Thomson contends that this new model of a relational or embedded self arose due to a weakening of traditional identities based on occupation social class gender and age which left individuals freer to construct their own identities In an age where Americans increasingly abandon the traditional mythology of an individual struggling against social constraints In Conflict No Longer forecasts a picture of American culture for the next millennium
