CHAPTER I Light entering the vast room, a room so high that its carved ceiling refused itself to exact scrutiny, travelled with the wistful, cold curiosity of the dawn over a fantastic storehouse of Time. Light, unaccompanied by the prejudice of human eyes, made strange revelation of incongruities as though illuminating the dispassionate march of history. For in this dining hall, one of the finest in England, the Caradoc family had for centuries assembled the trophies and records of their existence. Round about this dining hall they had built and pulled down and restored until the rest of Monkland Court presented some aspect of homogeneity. Here alone they had left virgin the work of the old quasi-monastic builders, and within it unconsciously deposited their souls. For there were here meeting the eyes of light, all those rather touching evidences of man's desire to persist for ever, those shells of his former bodies, the fetishes and queer proofs of his faiths, together with the remorseless demonstration of their treatment at the hands of Time. The annalist might here have found all his needed confirmations; the analyst from this material formed the due equation of high birth; the philosopher traced the course of aristocracy from its primeval rise in crude strength or subtlety through centuries of power to picturesque decadence and the beginnings of its last stand. Even the artist might here perchance have seized on the dry, ineffable pervading spirit, as one visiting an old cathedral seems to scent out the constriction of its heart.

Benedictus Anne E. O'Neill,2011-11-08 Benedictus is a love story of both divine and human dimensions The story of the nun is also the story of Joseph her psychologist It was a labyrinthian path that brought the two together in a surprising and courageous love that changed both their lives Twenty years of conflict over her vocation had taken Sister Anne into a void whose depths of darkness became what she called a place of Nothing She always believed that someone would come to help her and someone did but not as she had imagined and not in a way that the world would easily accept It would take someone like Joseph who was willing to risk all things professionally and personally to pull her out of that void Sister Anne's risk was no less she had to hold on and meet him every step of the way No door would be left unopened sparing her nothing She walked through them all and when the last door closed behind her Sister Anne knew a choice had to be made
