The Dramatic Works of Wycherley, Congreve, Vanbrugh, and Farquhar William Wycherley,1840 A BOOK OF GHOSTS Sabine Baring-Gould,2015-10-16 The city of Bayonne lying on the left bank of the Adour and serving as its port is one that ought to present much interest to the British tourist on account of its associations For three hundred years along with Bordeaux it belonged to the English crown The cathedral a noble structure of the fourteenth century was reared by the

English and on the bosses of its vaulting are carved the arms of England of the Talbots and of other great English noble families It was probably designed by English architects for it possesses in its vaulting the long central rib so characteristic of English architecture and wholly unlike what was the prevailing French fashion of vaulting in compartments and always without that connecting rib like the inverted keel of a ship with which we are acquainted in our English minsters Under some of the modern houses in the town are cellars of far earlier construction also vaulted and in them as well may be seen the arms of the English noble families which had their dwellings above But Bayonne has later associations with us At the close of the Peninsular War when Wellington had driven Marshal Soult and the French out of Spain and had crossed the Pyrenees his forces under Sir John Hope invested the citadel In February 1814 Sir John threw a bridge of boats across the Adour boats being provided by the fleet of Admiral Penrose in the teeth of a garrison of 15 000 men and French gunboats which guarded the river and raked the English whilst conducting this hazardous and masterly achievement This brilliant exploit was effected whilst Wellington engaged the attention of Soult about the Gaves affluents of the Adour near Orthez It is further interesting with a tragic interest on account of an incident in that campaign which shall be referred to presently The cathedral of Bayonne some years ago possessed no towers the English were driven out of Aquitaine before these had been completed The west front was mean to the last degree masked by a shabby penthouse plastered white or rather dirty white on which in large characters was Whitaker's Book List ,1987
