Quantitative Methods in Morphology / Quantitative Methoden in der Morphologie Ewald R. Weibel, H. Elias, 2012-12-06 Stereologic techniques begin to play an increasing role in biologic morphology particularly there where correlation of structure and function on a quantitative basis is sought These powerful methods have been in use for many years partly even for many decades in geology mineralogy and metallurgy while attempts to introduce them into histology have remained rather rare until a few years ago In order to stimulate discussion among anatomists about stereologic methods the International Society for Stereology an interdisciplinary society organized a Symposium on Quantitative Methods in Morphology which took place on August 10 1965 in the framework of the Eighth International Congress of Anatomists in Wiesbaden Germany The papers presented at this symposium are published in this volume in slightly extended form Some of the papers of this volume are of rather specialized nature and presume a basic knowledge of stereology The first chapter on general stereological principles has therefore been considerably extended and short introductory review paragraphs have been added to a few subsequent chapters to help those who are not yet familiar with this new field in understanding the more specialized original articles Long discussion periods formed an essential part of the symposium However they were conducted very informally and hence it would not have been profitable to reproduce them in extenso particularly since the major results of discussion have been incorporated by the authors into the expanded manuscripts presented here
