Dividing Paris Esther da Costa Meyer,2022-02-15 Dividing Paris Urban Renewal and Social Inequality 1852 1870 offers a new look at the ambitious urban changes that transformed the city of Paris during the Second Empire when Paris became a template for urban renewal in many large cities in Europe North and South America Esther da Costa Meyer looks at the social and historical context of these urban changes what Napoleon III his prefect Georges Eugene Haussman and their team of engineers planned as well as how the diverse and deeply stratified public responded to them Along with broad streets and boulevards intended to enable crowds and merchandise to circulate and also impede the chances of popular insurgency Haussman's project of urban renewal called for ample water supply sewerage and public parks and gardens These changes radically altered the old tightly knit weave of the medieval city serving the needs of the industrial bourgeoisie while forcing the urban poor to the outskirts Dividing Paris is the first architectural history of the city that takes into account the larger part of the urban territory annexed in 1860 a ring of settlements and villages which became increasingly class specific Instead of relating the story of Haussmanization as a top down administrative effort as Haussman's critics and admirers have both tended to do it draws on primary sources especially newspapers and memoirs to investigate the degree to which Parisians' experiences of modernity were class and gender specific and to ask what strategies working class men and women in particular used to cope with and in some cases resist the changing world around them At the same time da Costa Meyer resists the familiar narrative of Paris as capital of the 19th century that has endured at least since Walter Benjamin's famous essay as euro centric and misleading insofar as it fails to situate Paris's urban developments in a broader global context or to acknowledge the extent to which Haussmanization was itself implicated in the broader imperial project on which France was embarked at the time

Painted Love Hollis Clayson,2003-10-30 In this engrossing book Hollis Clayson provides the first description and analysis of French artistic interest in women prostitutes examining how the subject was treated in the art of the 1870s and 1880s by such avant garde painters as C3zanne Degas Manet and Renoir as well as by the academic and low brow painters who were their contemporaries Clayson not only illuminates the imagery of prostitution with its contradictory connotations of disgust and fascination but also tackles the issues and problems relevant to women and men in a patriarchal society She discusses the conspicuous sexual commerce during this era and the resulting public panic about the deterioration of social life and civilized mores She describes the system that evolved out of regulating prostitutes and the subsequent rise of clandestine prostitutes who escaped police regulation and who were condemned both for blurring social boundaries and for spreading sexual licentiousness among their moral and social superiors Clayson argues that the subject of covert prostitution was especially attractive to vanguard painters because it exemplified the commercialization and the ambiguity of modern life

The Economic Development of France Since 1870 François Crouzet,1993 In the mid nineteenth century France was the second industrial power in the world However she was soon to be overtaken by the US Germany and Japan and also badly suffered from the World Wars and the depression of the 1930s The literature in these volumes covers French economic development from 1870 to the present and will be indispensable especially to students of France and Western Europe and of twentieth century economics Progress in Ecology ,1980 The autumn of central Paris Anthony Sutcliffe,1971
