McLaughlin,Jolanta Stankeviciute,2006-11-27 International contributors to this wide ranging text discuss the phenomenon of globalisation and its different aspects in relation to higher education but also in relation to moves by nation states to devolve government to regional and subregional bodies and the implications therein

Science and Politics of Foreign Aid B. Hassler,2011-06-27 Contemporary international aid consists of a wide range of various support programs where the end result in many cases not only reflects the needs of the recipient country but also the interests of the donor country In Science and Politics of Foreign

Aid Swedish Environmental Support to the Baltic States it is shown that this particular support has been directed primarily towards areas of joint concern such as air pollution and effluents to the Baltic Sea Environmental problems with primarily local effects have to a large extent been neglected in the Swedish support program The requirement on the Baltic recipient countries to finance a specific fraction of each joint program with local resources has furthermore drained the local national environmental budgets from resources making it very difficult for these countries to mitigate various local environmental hazards by themselves In contrast to many previous foreign aid studies where various donor country biases often are suggested but not empirically validated this book gives an in depth view of how a particular support program is influenced by specific and self interested considerations Building the socially responsible employment policy in the Baltic Sea Region Max Hogeforster, Baltic Sea Academy, 2014-03-13 The topic that is disclosed in the scientific publication Building the socially responsible employment policy in Baltic states is certainly relevant to the context of national economy and social policy Experience shows that socially responsible employment policy measures are especially widely used in the old EU member states Relevance of socially responsible employment policy is not decreasing because unfavourable economic conditions aggravate the employment of certain groups of people especially the long term unemployed low skilled having low marketable professions and other persons The content of the scientific articles by the authors of this publication allows to answer reasonably to questions about the development of socially responsible employment policy in the Baltic states The results of accomplished analysis are relevant to the fact that they allow to reveal the problems that are encountered in the development of socially responsible employment policy A special focus is given to the employment of females and elderly employees to boost the innovation performance of companies Local Economic and Employment Development (LEED) Baltic Partnerships Integration, Growth and Local Governance in the Baltic Sea Region OECD, 2007-03-22 The Baltic Sea Region is rapidly becoming one of the world s more competitive regions The region is capitalising on its strengths and making the most of its diversity to stimulate innovation build a strong pool of skilled labour and foster
