Soul Of A New Machine:

The Soul of A New Machine Tracy Kidder, 2011-08-23 Tracy Kidder's riveting Washington Post story of one company's efforts to bring a new microcomputer to market won both the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award and has become essential reading for understanding the history of the American tech industry. Computers have changed since 1981 when The Soul of a New Machine first examined the culture of the computer revolution. What has not changed is the feverish pace of the high tech industry the go for broke approach to business that has caused so many computer companies to win big or go belly up and the cult of pursuing mind bending technological innovations. The Soul of a New Machine is an essential chapter in the history of the machine that revolutionized the world in the twentieth century. Fascinating. A surprisingly gripping account of people at work. Wall Street Journal

Constructing Rhetorical Education Davida Charney,Wilma R. Ebbitt,1992 In nineteen essays illustrating its many aspects this book offers an argument for what it takes to construct a complete rhetorical education The editors take an approach that is pragmatic and pluralistic based as it is on the assumptions that a rhetorical education is not limited to teaching freshman composition or any specific writing course and that the contexts in which such an education occurs are not limited to classrooms This thought provoking volume stresses that while a rhetorical education results in the growth of writing skills its larger goal is to foster critical thinking they did a generation ago In his studies of early childhood high school and university classrooms in Silicon Valley Larry Cuban found that students and teachers use the new technologies far less in the classroom than they do at home and that teachers who use computers for instruction do so infrequently and unimaginatively Cuban points out that historical and organizational economic contexts influence how teachers use technical innovations Computers can be useful when teachers sufficiently understand the technology themselves believe it will enhance learning and have the power to shape their own curricula But these conditions can't be met without a broader and deeper commitment to public education beyond preparing workers More attention Cuban says needs to be paid to the civic and social goals of schooling goals that make the question of how many computers are in classrooms trivial
