Enterprising Women in Transition Economies David Smallbone, 2017-03-02 Entrepreneurship is a key element in the development of market based economies and one of the potential drivers of change in countries that are in the process of transformation to market based systems This book describes and critically assesses the nature and extent of female entrepreneurship in European economies that until 1990 were operating under central planning At the core of the book are 7 country based chapters which provide an overview of the development of entrepreneurship and small firms since 1990 including a review of the institutional and policy context an assessment of the role of women within the society during the socialist period and any major changes afterwards Each chapter also includes a thematic section each one addressing a different issue based on unique empirical data drawn from original research Economic Development and Entrepreneurship in Transition Economies Jovo Ateljević, Jelena Trivić, 2016-04-05 This book contributes to a better understanding of entrepreneurship in transition economies Current literature reflects the more traditional schools of thought on entrepreneurship which are influenced by the Western perspective and fail to fully address the scenario in transition economies There is a broad consensus among academics policy makers and practitioners that a fundamental cause of difficulties experienced by most economies in transition has been the fact that reform has not been accompanied by the creation of new private businesses and particularly SMEs This is especially evident in states created in Europe after the dissolution of the Soviet Union where many barriers which were inherited from the old system remain in place thus inhibiting entrepreneurial progress in these countries despite a favorable political and economic environment The contributions featured in this book focus on how much progress has been achieved so far with regard to these aspects as well as identify

Transnational Business Galen Spencer Hull, 2022-03-26 First Published in 1999 Small Businesses Trickle Up in Central and Eastern Europe argues that micro small and medium sized enterprises in selected countries of Central and Eastern Europe CEE have been the key to economic growth rather than privatized large scale enterprises Small businesses have come to constitute the most dynamic element of growth in the emerging markets of the CEE region in the last decade In 1989 most of the countries of the region were still under the political and economic domination of the Soviet Union Since then a process of liberalization has been unleashed in the region to dismantle statist economic policies and replace them with free market policies This has involved programs of privatization and restructuring of state owned enterprises as well as the promotion of policies to enable a private sector to develop Small businesses are creating thousands of new jobs while large companies are retrenching and downsizing their workforce In some countries of the region this process is much further along than in others In each country however the small and medium enterprise SME sector has developed at a more rapid pace than has the privatization of the large public companies The privatization of small and medium sized state owned enterprises has been rather more successful With the economic transition there has been a flurry of new enterprises springing up throughout the region some registered as legal entities but many micro enterprises often remaining unregistered in the informal sector Micro enterprises are increasingly seen as an important element of this SME sector although they were traditionally treated separately as belonging to the informal sector and a detriment to economic growth
