Hankins,Robert J. Silverman,2014-07-14 Thomas Hankins and Robert Silverman investigate an array of instruments from the seventeenth through the nineteenth century that seem at first to be marginal to science magnetic clocks that were said to operate by the movements of sunflower seeds magic lanterns ocular harpsichords machines that played different colored lights in harmonious mixtures Aeolian harps a form of wind chime and other instruments of natural magic designed to produce wondrous effects By looking at these and the first recording instruments the stereoscope and speaking machines the authors show that scientific instruments first made their appearance as devices used to evoke wonder in the beholder as in works of magic and the theater The authors also demonstrate that these instruments even though they were often tricks were seen by their inventors as more than trickery In the view of Athanasius Kircher for instance the sunflower clock was not merely a hoax but an effort to demonstrate however fraudulently his truly held belief that the ability of a flower to follow the sun was due to the same cosmic magnetic influence as that which moved the planets and caused the rotation of the earth The marvels revealed in this work raise and answer questions about the connections between natural science and natural magic the meaning of demonstration the role of language and the senses in science and the connections among art music literature and natural science Originally published in 1995 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Sounds of Black Switzerland Jessie Cox, 2025-01-03 Writing as a scholar composer and musician Jessie Cox foregrounds the experience of Black Swiss through sound and music in his first book Sounds of Black Switzerland Cox himself Black Swiss affirms the value of Black life through sound while critiquing anti Blackness as a cause of erasure silence and limitation He examines Swiss Nigerian composer Charles Uzor s pieces for George Floyd work by Black Swiss musicians such as DJ Ma t Ch ni re clarinetist J r mie Jolo and rapper Nativ as well as his own musical collaborations with the Lucerne Festival In these analyses Cox tackles the particularities of anti Blackness in Switzerland creating a practice of listening beyond what can be directly heard to explore the radical potential of Black thought and experience in a nation often claimed to be race free In so doing he ultimately shifts thinking about Blackness in relation to citizenship immigration laws gender kinship and belonging By listening to Black Swiss and other voices inaudible to the current world Cox theorizes new ways of practicing scholarly study and general ways of relating to others and the world
