Of the truths with which political economy has been enriched by Mr Ricardo none has contributed more to give to that branch of knowledge the comparatively precise and scientific character which it at present bears than the more accurate analysis which he performed of the nature of the advantage which nations derive from a mutual interchange of their productions Previously to his time the benefits of foreign trade were deemed even by the most philosophical enquirers to consist in affording a vent for surplus produce or in enabling a portion of the national capital to replace itself with a profit The futility of the theory implied in these and similar phrases was an obvious consequence from the speculations of writers even anterior to Mr Ricardo But it was he who first in the chapter on Foreign Trade of his immortal Principles of Political Economy and Taxation substituted for the former vague and unscientific if not positively false conceptions with regard to the advantage of trade a philosophical exposition which explains with strict precision the nature of that advantage and affords an accurate measure of its amount He shewed that the advantage of an interchange of commodities between nations consists simply and solely in this that it enables each to obtain with a given amount of labour and capital a greater quantity of all commodities taken together This it accomplishes by enabling each with a quantity of one commodity which has cost it so much labour and capital to purchase a quantity of another commodity which if produced at home would have required labour and capital to a greater amount To render the importation of an article more advantageous than its production it is not necessary that the foreign country should be able to produce it with less labour and capital than

ourselves We may even have a positive advantage in its production but if we are so far favoured by circumstances as to have a still greater positive advantage in the production of some other article which is in demand in the foreign country we may be able to obtain a greater return to our labour and capital by employing none of it in producing the article in which our advantage is least but devoting it all to the production of that in which our advantage is greatest and giving this to the foreign country in exchange for the other It is not a difference in the absolute cost of production which determines the interchange but a difference in the comparative cost It may be to our advantage to procure iron from Sweden in exchange for cottons even although the mines of England as well as her manufactories should be more productive than those of Sweden for if we have an advantage of one half in cottons and only an advantage of a quarter in iron and could sell our cottons to Sweden at the price which Sweden must pay for them if she produced them herself we should obtain our iron with an advantage of one half as well as our cottons We may often by trading with foreigners obtain their commodities at a smaller expense of labour and capital than they cost to the foreigners themselves The bargain is still advantageous to the foreigner because the commodity which he receives in exchange though it has cost us less would have cost him more As often as a country possesses two commodities one of which it can produce with less labour comparatively to what it would cost in a foreign country than the other so often it is the interest of the country to export the first mentioned commodity and to import the second even though it might be able to produce both the one and the other at a less expense of labour than the foreign country can produce them but not less in the same degree or might be unable to produce either except at a greater expense but not greater in the same degree Essays on Some Unsettled Questions of Political Economy ,1874 Essays on Some for revenue and which do not touch either the necessities of life or the materials and instruments of production it is his opinion that any relaxation of such duties beyond what may be required by the interest of the revenue itself should in general be made contingent upon the adoption of some corresponding degree of freedom of trade with this country by the nation from which the commodities are imported Essays on Some Unsettled Questions of Political Economy (Classic Reprint) John Stuart Mill, 2017-11-26 Excerpt from Essays on Some Unsettled Questions of Political Economy A prejudice appears to exist in many quarters against the theory in question on the supposition of its being Opposed to one of the most valuable results of modern political philosophy the doctrine of Free dom of Trade between nation and nation The opinions now laid before the reader are presented as corollaries necessarily following from the principles upon which Free Trade itself rests The writer has also been careful to point out that from these Opinions no justification can be derived for any proleceifig duty or other preference given to domestic over foreign industry But in regard to those duties on foreign commodities which do not operate as proteo tion but are maintained solely for revenue and which do not touch either The necessities of life or the materials and instruments of production it is his Opinion that any relaxation of such duties beyond what may be required by the interest of the revenue itself should in general be made contingent upon the adoption of some corresponding degree of freedom of trade with this country by the nation from which the commodities are imported About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
