manifestos Moving between the Victorian and modernist periods Blair looks at a range of nineteenth and early twentieth century sources including the literature of conduct and household management as well as autobiography essay poetry and fiction She argues for a reevaluation of Woolf's persistent yet vexed fascination with English domesticity and female creativity by juxtaposing the novels of Elizabeth Gaskell and Margaret Oliphant two popular Victorian novelists against Woolf's own novels and essays Blair then traces unacknowledged lines of influence and complex interpretations that Woolf attempted to disavow While reconsidering Woolf's analysis of women and fiction Blair simultaneously deepens our appreciation of Woolf's work and advances our understanding of feminine aesthetics

Redefining the Modern Joseph Wiesenfarth, 2004 Redefining the Modern spans nearly a century and a half in a series of essays that capture the crucial shifts and transformations marking the change from the Victorian to the Modern period At the center of the collection is the understanding that literature responds to as well as initiates social intellectual and sometimes political change It also recognizes that historical categories like genres need to be realigned The diverse material ranges from Jane Austen's laughter to female detectives and black fiction It coheres however through its focus on the interaction of language and society and the way language and culture maintain a persistent and dynamic exchange Rather than deny links between one period and another this collection argues for continuity and development emphasizing revision and renewal rather than rejection and refusal No longer do critics accept fierce divides or unbridgeable paths between the work of the Victorians and moderns Recent approaches to the period reflecting gender cultural studies and new historicism provide fresh means of assessment Central to this reconception is the recognition that if the Victorians invented us we in turn h
