R. J. O. Hamblin

The English Channel:

The English Channel Nigel Calder, 1986 The strip of sea that the English call the Channel and the French call the Sleeve is quite simply the most fascinating piece of water in the world The globe's busiest seaway the Channel is a stormy passage that remains a wild frontier between two closely related peoples who by long tradition detest each other's manners and philosophy Nigel Calder whose informative witty books have explained the mysteries of science to millions of readers here embarks on a wide ranging exploration of a body of water extraordinarily rich in natural and historical interest an untidy museum touching on everything from geology and archaeology history and politics to navigational principles and the lore of the sea Jacket flap The pilot's handbook for the English Channel John William King, 1882 The Geology of the English Channel R. J. O. Hamblin, 1992 The sea area discussed in this report is delimited to the north by the south coast of England and to the south by the median line separating French from UK waters The area featured in pioneering offshore geological exploration but less work has been carried out by the oil industry in this area than in the adjacent North Sea and South Western Approaches However surveys related to both aggregate studies and the Channel Tunnel have been important sources of data and the area has been the subject of much academic research This report concentrates on UK waters but mention is made of the geology of both French waters and the coastal areas on either side of the English Channel The Florence Stories Jacob Abbott, 1863 The English Channel Hillas Smith, 1994 Two Faces of the English Channel Paul Jagasich, 1989 The Lioness Gigi Griffis, 2024-11-19 The king killed the love of her life and she's going to make him pay Step into this epic revenge tale à la The Count of Monte Cristo based on the true story of France's most notorious lady pirate By the author of The Empress as seen on Netflix It's 1343 and Jeanne de Clisson is out for revenge At forty three her perfect life a loving husband three young children and two castles in the French countryside shatters when Phillip VI the King of France arrests and beheads her husband for treachery There's no evidence and no trial only the execution The nobles are shocked The paranoid king is relieved And Jeanne Jeanne wants the king's head on a pike To get justice she'll take to the sea with a pirate fleet But while she's burning castles to the ground and sinking merchant ships the king is hunting her And the closer she gets to her revenge the closer the king gets to the people Jeanne loves most Griffis has an eye for historical detail and a deft hand when it comes to plotting Crime Reads The Complete Idiot's Guide to Geography Joseph Gonzalez, Thomas E.
