Autobiography Janet Frame, 1986 Surfaces of Strangeness Simone Oettli-van Delden, 2003 Women Who Wrote for Their Lives Kenneth Bragan, 2019-06-08 Women Who Wrote for Their Lives The Healing Power of Creative Writing was inspired by author Janet Frame the late New Zealand writer who penned novels poetry and short stories as well as her own powerful autobiography Frame's dramatic personal history included years of psychiatric hospitalisation Born in 1924 Frame passed away in 2004 During her early life patients with severe mental health issues received what today would be considered grim treatment Days before the author was scheduled for a lobotomy the procedure was cancelled when her first book of short stories won a national literary prize Author and retired psychiatrist Kenneth Bragan realizes how powerful writing can be as a therapeutic tool He says Starting with Janet Frame's remarkable recovery to become a writer of international repute after having spent many years in mental hospitals I went on to find four other well known writers who had to keep mental suffering at bay through writing He explores The Healing Power of Creative Writing from a psychiatric perspective in his book This book is a stunning exploration of the intersection of mental health and the arts Author Kenneth Bragan presents a rigorous analysis of the work and lives of five eminent female authors demonstrating how their creative processes both reflected and helped alleviate the struggles of their mental illnesses From Frame to Woolf to du Maurier Bragan argues that literary history presents us with unique strategies for betterment allowing agency and expression to guide us therapeutically to a better understanding of the self it is essential reading for anyone looking for a creative approach to betterment Charles Asher reviewer Dangerous Writing Carmen Luz Fuentes-Vásquez, 2013 This book examines the literary construction of personal identity through autobiographical narratives by three significant writers analysed together for the first time the Scottish Willa Muir 1890 1970 the Canadian Margaret Laurence 1926 1987 and the New Zealander Janet Frame 1924 2004 These apparently dissimilar authors suffered not only geographical but also political marginality they were women from the working class or struggling middle class striving to be considered as professional writers and emerging from countries that might be felt to be under the shadows of economic and political world powers such as England and the United States During their lifetimes they exerted themselves to overcome prejudices about class gender and ethnicity They experienced war and the post war era and lived through most of the twentieth century being accurate

witnesses and critics of their times As it discusses major writers who are iconic for the development of the literatures of their respective countries this book also attracts readers who are interested in learning more about the lives of these remarkable women the way their socio historical and geographical circumstances affected their writing and how they expressed such concerns in their autobiographies and other fictional and non fictional works besides considering them in relation to contemporary women writers and autobiographers who underwent similar experiences

Life Writing and the End of Empire Emma Parker, 2024-03-21 The dismantlement of the British Empire had a profound impact on many celebrated white Anglophone writers of the twentieth century particularly those who were raised in former British colonial territories and returned to the metropole after the Second World War Formal decolonisation meant that these authors were unable to go home to their colonial childhoods a historical juncture with profound consequences for how they wrote and recorded their own lives Moving beyond previous discussions of imperial and colonial nostalgia Life Writing and the End of Empire is the first critical study of white memoirists and autobiographers who rewrote their memories of empire across numerous life narratives By focussing on these processual homecomings Emma Parker's study asks what it means to be at home in memories of empire whether in the settler farms of Southern Rhodesia or amidst the neon lights of Shanghai's International Settlement These discussions trace the legacies of empire to the habitations and detritus of everyday life from mansions and modest railway huts to empty swimming pools heirlooms and photograph albums Exploring works by Penelope Lively J G Ballard Doris Lessing and Janet Frame this study establishes new connections between authors usually discussed for their fiction and who have been hitherto unrecognised as post imperial life writers Offering close sustained analysis of autobiographies memoirs travel narratives and autofictions and identifying new subgenres such as speculative life writing this book advances rich new readings of autobiographical narrative By tracing the continuing importance of colonialism to white subjectivity the role of imperial memory in Britain and the ways that these unsettling forces move beneath the surface of modern and contemporary literature this study offers new conceptual insights to the fields of life writing and postcolonial studies

Manifold Utopia Marc Delrez, 2021-10-01 This study of Janet Frame's fiction addresses with unusual directness the Utopian momentum that underpins her concern with fundamental social issues traditionally highlighted in existing criticism of her work The idea behind this book is that Frame's critique of society while it is offered for its own sake on one level should not lead us to neglect the author's more speculative interest in an alternative conception of the human person Her engagement in a species of experimental portraiture proves elusive though owing to an indirectness of approach that usually takes the form of thematic circumscription rather than explicit representation For example the figure of the mute child recurrent in her work may well testify to a concern with the plight of the mentally ill but on another level it also points to an envelope of intractable experience which it is the artist's task to penetrate and explain Such aspiration is inseparable from the search for a new medium of expression felt to be necessary if one is to meet the challenge of apprehending the scope of pioneering knowledge This close reading of the novels reveals that the alternative dimension of experience to be found in Frame's novels is characterized by an intact capacity for remembering or for imaginatively re-creating eclipsed aspects of the present Frame's view of Utopia thus turns out to be manifold it is existential and ontological linguistic and epistemological but also historical and political An unravelling of these intertwined strains then serves to clarify the complex question of Frame's post-colonial sensibility which cannot be said to rely on a sense of rigid identity whether national or otherwise

Wrestling with the Angel Michael King, 2002-03-07 Janet Frame born in 1924 is New Zealand's most celebrated and least public author Her early life in small South Island towns seemed at times engulfed in a tide of doom one brother still born another epileptic two sisters dead of heart failure while swimming Frame herself committed to mental hospitals for the best part of a decade Later her surviving sister was temporarily felled in adulthood by a stroke an uncle cut his throat and a cousin shot his lover his lover's parents and then himself This then is an inspiring biography of a woman who climbed out of an abyss of unhappiness to take control of her life and become one of the great writers of her time And to enable her biographer to write this book scrupulously and honestly Janet Frame spoke for the first time about her whole life She also made available her personal papers and directed her family and friends to be equally communicative The result is a biography of astonishing intimacy and frankness written by multi-award winning author Dr Michael King

Metafiction and the Postwar Novel Andrew Dean, 2021-04-01 Metafiction and the Postwar Novel is a full length reassessment of one of the definitive literary forms of the postwar period sometimes known as postmodern metafiction In the place of large scale theorizing this book centres on the intimacies of writing situations metafiction as it responds to readers literary reception and earlier works in a career The emergence of archival materials and posthumously published works helps to bring into view the stakes of different moments of writing It develops new terms for discussing literary self-reflexivity derived from a reading of Don Quixote and its reception by J L Borges the self of writing and the public author as signature Across three comprehensive chapters Metafiction and Postwar Fiction shows how some of the most highly regarded postwar writers were motivated to incorporate reflexive elements into their writing and to what ends The first chapter on South African novelist J M Coetzee shows with a new clarity how his fictions drew from and relativized academic literary theory and the conditions of writing in apartheid South Africa The second chapter on New Zealand writer Janet Frame draws widely from her fictions autobiographies and posthumously published materials It demonstrates the terms in which her writing addresses a readership seemingly convinced that her work expressed the interior experience of madness The final chapter on American writer Philip Roth shows how his early reception led to his later and often explosive reconsiderations of identity and literary value in postwar America

Janet Frame in Focus Josephine A. Janet Frame Matthew Paul Pierre, 2011-05-12 In Janet Frame Semiotics and Biosemiotics in Her Early Fiction Paul Matthew St Pierre exploits the linguistic discipline of semiotics and the neurobiological discipline of biosemiotics to propose an original and dynamic reading of the first four works of fiction by New Zealand writer Janet Frame 1924 2004 The Lagoon Stories 1951 Owls Do Cry 1957 Faces in the Water 1961 and The Edge of the Alphabet 1962 Opposing the prevailing reading of Frame's early fiction as autobiographical deriving from her medical history he argues her books are singular evocations of her astonishing imagination His purpose is to fix this historical record and provide an alternative model for interpreting one of the 20th century's most stylistically demanding and rewarding writers Semiotics and biosemiotics are his means for unlocking the early fiction and her later works to a polemical analysis focusing on language sign transmissions writing the body and the biosemiotic self In The Lagoon Owls Do Cry Faces in the Water and The Edge of the Alphabet Frame produced what St Pierre interprets as an original semiotic and biosemiotic modeling system that she applied throughout her oeuvre of twenty books comprising eight story collections seven novels a book of poetry a children's novel and three volumes of autobiography Using this modeling system she designed her fiction as a visual verbal field consisting of still and moving images generated in the imagination located in the brains and central nervous systems of her narrators characters and readers and primarily of the author herself The author discusses the significations of 1 Frame's image signs in water glass photographs film membranes skin and clothing 2 her primary sign repertoire of objects language and human persons in the figures of blood skin and sun 3 her body signs including those generated in the circulatory and neurological systems of all human organisms as biosemiotic living s

Jane Campion Hilary Radner, Alistair Fox, Irène Bessière, 2009 An innovative collection of original essays on Jane Campion renowned female auteur filmmaker In Jane Campion Cinema Nation Identity a diverse group of contributors challenge the view that Campion's body of work lacks coherence or unity to instead examine the important characteristics and themes that underlie it Editors Hilary Radner Alistair Fox and Irene Bessière have compiled rich original scholarship on Campion's oeuvre to probe issues previously neglected by scholars like her debt to New Zealand sources and her personal views of family dynamics and those that benefit from additional insight such as her place in the feminist filmmaking tradition This volume also investigates Campion's distinct cinematic style in light of these issues to examine the source of her enduring cross cultural and international appeal Contributors in the first section explore the creation of subjectivity and identity in Campion's films which include well known works like The Piano and Holy Smoke to trace the unique perspectives of Campion's characters and Campion herself as director In the second section essays analyze Campion's close relationship with literature and argue that the singular vision in her literary adaptations stems from her New Zealand background and her personal mythology Contributors in the third section argue that while Campion devotes considerable attention to the evocation of feminine internal space she also uses the symbolic potential of her external physical locations to register what is taking place in the inner life of her characters and reflect their search for personal fulfillment A final group of essays presents a variety of responses to Campion's films demonstrating that Campion is a highly personal and idiosyncratic director who nonetheless manages to fascinate viewers across a broad cultural spectrum Taken together contributors in Jane Campion Cinema Nation Identity present a compelling analysis of Campion's status as a leading female filmmaker with close attention to her distinctive cinematic style and particular mise en scène The collective nature of this volume will appeal to students and teachers of film literature and gender studies as well as fans of Campion's work

Frameworks, 2009-01-01 Janet Frame's work is notorious for the demands it makes on reader and critic This collection of nine new essays by international Frame specialists draws on a range of critical frameworks to explore fresh ways of looking at Frame's fiction poetry and autobiography At the same time the essays plug into the energy of Frame's work to challenge our thinking within and beyond these frameworks Frameworks offers a unique perspective on Frame studies today showcasing its major concerns as well as heralding new Frame narratives for the decade ahead Mindful of preceding Frame criticism these essays use their contemporary vantage point to recast seminal questions about the relationship between Janet Frame's work and its critical contexts Each of the essays makes a case for framing her work in a particular way but all are characterized by self reflexivity regarding their own critical practice and the relationship they assume between exegetical framework and Frame's work Underlying this practice and contained within the pun of the title are the elementary sounding yet fundamental questions of Frame studies How does Frame's work work And how do we work with her work
