Art or Scribbles? In the Eye of the Beholder: The Evolutionary Emergence of Visual Communication Iain Davidson, 2025-09-08 The book is about how art arose and how it became what we call art today How did art emerge from the relationships between people and the things they produce and the ideas of producers How do people manipulate those relationships in their own society How do outsiders work out the ways in which those relationships were used to make art What is art and why are all people engaged with it in one way or another From its very beginning and everywhere art has always been embedded in its cultural context the contexts of the people who made and see it and that context has often been ritual The history of art confused social and institutional changes of view because western critics or artists sought to define the boundaries of art so tightly that ritual purposeful or utilitarian works were excluded from it In their definition art only existed if the rituals of the original producers were stripped from the works or if the objects were appropriated away from the situation in which they were produced The objects stripped from their context could then only be valued for their aesthetics Art consists of relationships between people things and ideas in quite specific ways Those relationships are discussed at length in this book The book is aimed at artists art historians and archaeologists but also at the general public interested in art It is intended both for people whose interest in art comes from knowledge of the art of all continents and for those who have no knowledge

Art And The Committed Eye Richard Leppert, 2019-04-05 In Art and the Committed Eye Richard Leppert examines Western European and American art from the fifteenth to the twentieth century He studies the complex relation between the look of images and the variety of social and cultural uses to which they are put and demonstrates that the meaning of any image is significantly determined by its function which changes over time In particular he emphasizes the ways in which visual culture is called on to mediate social differences defined by gender class and race In Leppert addresses the nature and task of representation discussing how meaning accrues to images and what role vision and visibility play in the history of modernity Here he explains imagery s power to attract our gaze by triggering desire and focuses on the long history of the use of representation to enact a deception whether in painting or advertising explores art s relation to the material world to the ways in which images mark our various physical and psychic ties to objects The author analyzes still life paintings whose subject matter is both extraordinarily diverse and deeply paradoxical from flower bouquets to grotesque formal arrangements of human body parts Leppert demonstrates that even in innocent still lifes formal design and technical execution are imbued with cultural conflict and social power is devoted to the representation of the human body as subject to obsessive gazing and as an object of display spectacle and transgression The variety of body representation is enormous pleased or tortured gorgeous or monstrous modest or lascivious powerful or weak in the bloom of life or under the anatomist's knife clothed or naked But it is the sexual body Leppert shows that has provided the West with its richest most complex contradictory conflicted and paradoxical accounts of human identity in relation to social ideals
