Money in Late Victorian and Edwardian England Maria Quirk, 2019-05-16 Women Art and Money in England establishes the importance of women artists' commercial dealings to their professional identities and reputations in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Grounded in economic, social, and art history, the book draws on and synthesises data from a broad range of documentary and archival sources to present a comprehensive history of women artists' professional status and business relationships within the complex and changing art market of late Victorian England. By providing new insights into the routines and incomes of women artists and the spaces where they created, exhibited, and sold their art, this book challenges established ideas about what women had to do to be considered professional artists. More important than a Royal Academy education or membership to exhibiting societies was a woman's ability to sell her work. This meant that women had strong incentive to paint in saleable popular and middlebrow genres which reinforced prejudices towards women's naturally inferior artistic ability, prejudices that continued far into the twentieth century. From shining a light on the difficult-to-trace pecuniary arrangements of little-researched artists like Ethel Mortlock to offering new and direct comparisons between the incomes earned by male and female artists and the genres, commissions, and exhibitions that earned women the most money, Women Art and Money is a timely contribution to the history of women's working lives that is relevant to a number of scholarly disciplines.
