Steering The Polity Communication And Politics In Israel:

Trouble in Utopia Dan Horowitz, Moshe Lissak, 2012-02-01 This book provides a thorough and detailed examination of Israeli institutions and how they function. It explains the decline in effectiveness of the government and the spread of cultural malaise in the Israel of the eighties. Horowitz and Lissak trace the integrative and disintegrative trends in Israel and show how a society that had laid the foundations for a cohesive Jewish nation state became increasingly vulnerable to centrifugal forces. The book not only reflects a broad and comprehensive approach but also focuses on themes that cut across institutional structures such as the weakening of social and political cohesion in an overburdened polity.

Steering the Polity Itzhak Galnoor, Examines a political system as a network of communication. This analysis includes but does not limit itself to the relationship between political institutions and the mass media. Rather it takes into account how all channels of information to and from centres of power work, how that information flows and the impact that it has. Galnoor regards the process of decision making in society as being essentially a problem for communication studies. Israel is used as a case study. The book begins with a proposal for a theory of political communication drawing on the ideas of Karl Deutsch. A brief overview of Israeli society and politics follows. The following six chapters apply this theoretical framework to Israel's political development. Galnoor makes a distinction between political development per se and democratic development which he believes can be distinguished through an analysis of selected political variables in communication terms. Israel's democratic development is the subject of the next two chapters. Galnoor regards the process of decision making in society as being essentially a problem from communication studies. His synthesis of politics and communication may be the basis for truly comparative studies of how decisions to use power are made.

Steering the Polity Itzhak Galnoor, 1982-05 Galnoor examines a political system that of Israel as a network of communication both to and from the power centre. He develops a new theory of political communication and applies it in order to define the distinction between political development per se and democratic development. His synthesis of politics sociology and communication may be the basis for truly comparative studies of how policies and decisions to use power are made. A most useful volume in any academic library collection on the Middle East or participatory democracies especially those libraries serving upper division students and up. Choice March 1983
