

What is an Internal Consultant?

"The consultant is in the business of helping others succeed, and, although consultants want to succeed in the process, their success is clearly dependent on others. (Bellman 1992)" – page 3

External vs. Internal Consulting

Internal Consultants...begin with relationships and then must work to gain credibility for their consulting competency.

A Matter of Perception

"External consultants immediately have better leverage and are seen as descending from above with wisdom and special counsel. They are trusted because they have experience outside the system and culture of the organization and, therefore, are not seen as part of the problem. When I was an external consultant, I looked for ways to be congruent with the client system so it would not spit me out like an immune system rejecting a foreign object. If you are an internal consultant working to correct business problems as part of that system or organization, you are less likely to be rejected..." (Diane Foster, Diane Foster & Associates -- page 15)

The Internal Consultant:

The Role of the Internal Consultant Fritz Steele, 1982 Business success today requires a much more flexible attitude than it has in the past. Rapid changes in economic conditions mean that organizations are encountering new kinds of problems which often demand unorthodox solutions. Until now external consultants were called in to help with highly technical or persistent problems. But because of the increase in issues needing highly specialized skills or knowledge, this answer is no longer efficient. This situation has given rise to a new breed of personnel—the internal consultant. Internal consulting is an expedient way for organizations to develop and maintain their versatility and quick problem solving ability. In this book the author discusses the effective role shaping of this new breed and profiles their function in a variety of fields. Whether they're managers or staff members, whether the problem is in information systems, finance, or organization development, when sharing their resources with other people they confront the challenges and responsibilities of the internal consulting role. This book provides a broad overview of these challenges and responsibilities and offers practical insights into the new modes of functioning required. It includes information on coping with role conflicts working within the organizational structure and exercising personal influence. He also stresses the value of considering all options before making a decision, discusses constructive ways to approach a problem and delineates strategies for measuring internal consulting effectiveness. Pointing out that expertise in a particular area does not necessarily imply the ability to impart that knowledge to others, he details the teaching skills that motivate people to listen, question, and implement a solution. The role of the internal consultant is an invaluable tool for becoming competent and comfortable with the internal consulting role and will prompt every organization to examine ways to effectively use the specialized knowledge of their personnel.

Internal Consulting for HRD Professionals

Professionals Jerry W. Gilley, Amy J. Coffern, 1994 One of the many roles of the HRD professional is that of the internal consultant. Its recent increase in importance and value has brought with it increased challenges. The book is a how-to guide that shows how to make the transition to the often unfamiliar turf of internal consultant. It covers the knowledge, skills, and attitudes required and expected of internal consultants, how to build positive client/employee relationships, and how to make the transition to non-traditional or non-classroom training.

The Trainer As Internal Consultant Jack Asgar,2002 Performance consulting is one of the hottest topics in the training field Many training departments have changed their names and titles along with mission and vision statements to reflect consulting as their highest order of priority Unfortunately their definition of internal consulting is restricted to determining if training is needed and if not what alternative solutions are available for solving an operational or organizational problem The Trainer as Internal Consultant presents a more comprehensive and realistic view of the consulting function The basic premise is that training is a staff function and as such its primary mission is to serve as a consultant to its customers in all matters related to training All of the areas in which consulting should routinely take place are thoroughly discussed performance improvement or problem driven issues being only one of them Also discussed are a 3 phase consulting model and specific techniques for carrying out consulting activities in such critical areas as entry level training organizational development compliance and personal and professional development
