I. ФОРМАЛИЗАЦИЯ И ПРОГРЕСС В ПСИХОЛОГИИ (1940)

I

В последние годы в позиции американской психологии произошли очень заметные изменения. В течение 20-х и начала 30-х годов психологи были в общем и целом скорее враждебны теории. Руководимые наивным метафизическим убеждением, они были склонны считать «сбор фактов» единственной задачей «научной» психологии и чрезвычайно скептически относились к идее психологических законов в области потребностей, воли и эмоций, то есть в любых областях, кроме восприятия и памяти.

Сегодня появился определенный интерес к психологической теории, частично благодаря усилиям некоторых психологов (в частности, Толмена и Халла в психологии животных). Потребность в более тесном слиянии различных областей психологии требует инструментария, который даст возможность лучшей интеграции. Практические задачи психической гигиены и образования требуют концептуального инструментария, который позволяет делать предсказания. Ни одно из этих требований нельзя выполнить без теории.

Теперь, однако, кажется необходимым указать на известные опасности теоретизирования. Увлеченность Теорией? Да! Психология может использовать многое из этого. Однако мы не создадим ничего, кроме пустого формализма, если забудем, что математизацию и формализацию следует проводить только в той мере, в какой позволяет зрелость неслежуемого материала в данное время.

С философской точки зрения существует, по-видимому, только «или-или»: если научные «факты», и в особенности все так называемые динамические факты, — не просто «данные», но неразрывно переплетены с теоретическими предположениями, тогда, по-видимому, ничего не остается, как основывать каждое утверждение в психологии на теоретических предположениях.
