Religious Studies and Rabbinics Elizabeth Alexander, Beth Berkowitz, 2017-09-08 Religious Studies and Rabbinics have overlapping yet distinct interests subject matter and methods Religious Studies is committed to the study of religion writ large It develops theories and methods intended to apply across religious traditions Rabbinics by contrast is dedicated to a defined set of texts produced by the rabbinic movement of late antiquity Religious Studies and Rabbinics represents the first sustained effort to create a conversation between these two academic fields In one trajectory of argument the book shows what is gained when each field sees how the other engages the same questions When did the concept of religion arise How should a scholar's normative commitments interact with their scholarship The book argues that if scholars from Religious Studies and Rabbinics do not realize they are addressing the same problems they will not benefit from each other's solutions A second line of argument brings research methods theoretical claims and data associated with one field into contact with those of the other When Religious Studies categories such as ritual or the sacred are applied to data from Rabbinics and conversely when text reading strategies distinctive to Rabbinics are employed for texts from other traditions both Religious Studies and Rabbinics enlarge their scope The chapters range across such themes as ritual failure rabbinic conceptions of scripture ethics food time and everyday life problems of definition and normativity in the study of religion J Z Smith's writings and the preaching of the African American Christian evangelical social justice activist John Perkins With chapters written by world class theorists of Religious Studies and prominent text scholars of Rabbinics the book provides a unique opportunity to expand the conceptual reach and scholarly audience of both Religious Studies and Jewish Studies

The Ideology of Religious Studies Timothy Fitzgerald, 2003-10-16 In recent years there has been an intensifying debate within the religious studies community about the validity of religion as an analytical category In this book Fitzgerald sides with those who argue that the concept of religion itself should be abandoned On the basis of his own research in India and

Japan and through a detailed analysis of the use of religion in a wide range of scholarly texts the author maintains that the comparative study of religion is really a form of liberal ecumenical theology By pretending to be a science religion significantly distorts socio cultural analysis He suggest however that religious studies can be re represented in a way which opens up new and productive theoretical connections with anthropology and cultural and literary studies The Future of the Study of Religion Slavica Jakelic,Lori Pearson,2018-08-14 This volume brings together diverse voices from various fields within religious and theological studies for a conversation about the proper objects goals and methods for the study of religion in the twenty first century It approaches these questions by way of the most recent contemporary challenges debates and developments in the field and provides a forum in which contending perspectives are tested and contested by their proponents and opponents Contributors address topics such as the connection between the normative and the scientific approaches to the study of religion the meaning of religion in a context of globalization the relation between religious studies and religious traditions the viability of comparative and cultural studies of religious phenomena and the future of gender studies in religion Was Hinduism Invented? Bird,Simon G. Smith,2009-01-22 Theology and religious studies co exist in the majority of departments in higher education institutions within the UK yet there has been very little debate or discussion on how these two disciplines relate to one another in this context and on a more general level This new collection of essays aims to redress the balance and to add to fruitful discussion in this area Including essays by some of today s leading academics on the sometimes contentious relationship between religious studies or the study of religions and theology this volume is international in scope with contributions from scholars from the UK USA South

Africa Netherlands Sweden and Iran Many of the essays offer a contextualised account of the evolving relationship between the disciplines The contributors address such issues as the place of theology within today s universities the problem of clashing methodologies in theology and religious studies the possibility for a theological religious studies approaching the study of religions without theology interdisciplinary approaches for bridging the theology religious studies divide and the place of biblical studies in the theology religious studies debate

Interreligious Comparisons in Religious Studies and Theology Perry Schmidt-Leukel, Andreas Nehring, 2016-07-14 Can religions be compared For decades the discipline of religious studies was based on the assumption that they can Postmodern and postcolonial reflections however raised significant doubts In social and cultural studies the investigation of the particular often took precedence over a comparative perspective Interreligious Comparisons in Religious Studies and Theology questions whether religious studies can survive if it ceases to be comparative religion Can it do justice to a globalized world if it is limited on the specific and turns a blind eye on the general While comparative approaches have come under strong pressure in religious studies they have started flourishing in Theology Comparative theology practices interfaith dialogue by means of comparative research This volume asks whether theology and religious studies are able to mutually benefit from their critical and constructive reflections Can postcolonial criticism of neutrality and objectivity in religious studies create new links with the decidedly perspectival approach of comparative theology In this collection scholars from theology and religious studies discuss the methodology of interreligious comparison in the light of recent doubts and current objections Together with the contributors Perry Schmidt Leukel and Andreas Nehring argue that after decades of critique interreligious comparison deserves to be reconsidered reconstructed and reintroduced

Theology in the Public Square Gavin D'Costa, 2013-04-10 This imaginative study rethinks the nature of theology and its role in universities The author sketches out a fascinating project using examples from US and UK institutions whereby theology becomes a transformative force within universities Imagines what a Christian university in which all disciplines have been theologized would look like Feeds into discussions about the religious identity of denominationally linked colleges and universities Forms part of a wider attempt to imagine a vital public role for theology that enables it to serve both the Church and the wider community

McCutcheon, 2014-09-11 Failure and Nerve in the Academic Study of Religion presents a provocative critique of the unwillingness of modern scholars to publically distinguish research into comparative religion from confessional studies written within denominationally affiliated institutions The book offers the 19th Century founders of the study of religion as a bracing corrective to contemporary timidity The issue was analysed and documented by Wiebe a quarter of a century ago Here marking Wiebe s work a wide range of contributors reassess the methodology and ambition of contemporary religious research The book argues that conceptualizing religion as part of the world of human action and experience is the first requirement of the study of religion Negotiating Religion François Guesnet, Cécile Laborde, Lois Lee, 2016-08-25
