Restraint Barry R. Posen, 2014-06-03 The United States Barry R Posen argues in Restraint has grown incapable of moderating its ambitions in international politics Since the collapse of Soviet power it has pursued a grand strategy that he calls liberal hegemony one that Posen sees as unnecessary counterproductive costly and wasteful Written for policymakers and observers alike Restraint explains precisely why this grand strategy works poorly and then provides a carefully designed alternative grand strategy and an associated military strategy and force structure In contrast to the failures and unexpected problems that have stemmed from America's consistent overreaching Posen makes an urgent argument for restraint in the future use of U S military strength After setting out the political implications of restraint as a guiding principle Posen sketches the appropriate military forces and posture that would support such a strategy He works with a deliberately constrained notion of grand strategy and even more important of national security which he defines as including sovereignty territorial integrity power position and safety His alternative for military strategy which Posen calls command of the commons focuses on protecting U S global access through naval air and space power while freeing the United States from most of the relationships that require the permanent stationing of U S forces overseas

The First World War Hew Strachan, 2003-02-06 This is the first truly definitive history of the First World War the war that has done most to shape the twentieth century The first generation of its historians had access to only a limited range of sources and their focus was primarily on military events More recent approaches have embraced cultural diplomatic economic and social history In Hew Strachan s authoritative and readable history these fresh perspectives are incorporated with the military and strategic narrative The result is an account that breaks the bounds of national preoccupations to become both global and comparative To Arms the first of three volumes in this magisterial study examines not only the causes of the war and its opening clashes on land and sea but also the ideas that underpinned it and the motivations of the people who supported it It provides full and pioneering accounts of the war s finances of the war in Africa and of the Central Powers bid to widen the war outside Europe

The Origins of Major War Dale C. Copeland, 2013-02-15 One of the most important questions of human existence is what drives nations to war especially massive system threatening war Much military history focuses on the who when and where of war In this riveting book Dale C Copeland brings attention to bear on why governments make decisions that lead to sustain and intensify conflicts Copeland presents detailed historical narratives of several twentieth century cases including World War I World War II and the Cold War He highlights instigating factors that transcend individual personalities styles of government geography and historical context to reveal remarkable consistency across several major wars usually considered dissimilar The result is a series of challenges to established interpretive positions and provocative new readings of the causes of conflict Classical realists and neorealists claim that dominant powers initiate war Hegemonic stability realists believe that wars are most often started by rising states Copeland offers an approach stronger in explanatory power and predictive capacity than these three brands of realism he examines not only the power resources but the shifting power differentials of states He specifies more precisely the conditions under which state decline leads to conflict drawing empirical support from the critical cases of the twentieth century as well as major wars spanning from ancient Greece to the Napoleonic Wars

Machines as the Measure of Men Michael Adas, 2015-06-04 Over the past five centuries advances in Western understanding of and control over the material world have strongly influenced European responses to non Western peoples and cultures In Machines as the Measure of Men Michael Adas explores the ways in which European perceptions of their scientific and technological superiority shaped their interactions with people overseas Adopting a broad comparative perspective he analyzes European responses to the cultures of sub Saharan Africa India and China cultures that they judged to represent lower levels of material mastery and social organization Beginning with the early decades of overseas expansion in the sixteenth century Adas traces the impact of scientific and technological advances on European attitudes toward Asians and Africans and on their policies for dealing with colonized societies He concentrates on British and French thinking in the nineteenth century when he maintains scientific and technological measures of human worth played a critical role in shaping arguments for the notion of racial supremacy and the civilizing mission ideology which were used to justify Europe s domination of the globe Finally he examines the reasons why many Europeans grew dissatisfied with and even rejected this gauge of human worth after World War I and explains why it has remained important to Americans Showing how the scientific and industrial revolutions contributed to the development of European imperialist ideologies Machines as the Measure of Men highlights the cultural factors that have nurtured disdain for non Western accomplishments and value systems It also indicates how these attitudes in shaping policies that restricted the diffusion of scientific knowledge have perpetuated themselves and contributed significantly to chronic underdevelopment throughout the developing world Adas s far reaching and provocative book will be compelling reading for all who are concerned about the history of Western imperialism and its legacies First published to wide acclaim in 1989 Machines as the Measure of Men is now available in a new edition that features a preface by the author that discusses how subsequent developments in gender and race studies as well as global technology and politics enter into conversation with his original arguments Modern Europe,
