Excerpt from The Indigenous Trees of the Hawaiian Islands

It has long been the writer's desire to give to the public a volume on the native trees of Hawaii giving popular as well as technical descriptions of the trees peculiar to Hawaiian soil. At first it was thought that plain popular descriptions would suffice but it soon became evident that the technical part could not be dispensed with and in order to make the book valuable for both the layman and the scientist it was therefore included. The rather lengthy introduction seemed an advisable feature and necessary as it gives practically for the first time a more or less detailed description of all the floral regions and their plant associations found in this island group not being restricted to trees alone but embracing the whole plant covering. In the sequence of families Engler and Prantl's Natürliche Pflanzenfamilien System has been followed beginning with the Cryptogams and ending with the Compositae. Under each species a complete reference and synonymy is given as far as was possible. Of course as in all works of this nature mistakes will undoubtedly be found which will have to be overlooked on account of the insular position of the writer as it was not always possible to consult original works some of them old and out of print and therefore unobtainable. It will not be out of place here to acknowledge the kind assistance of Miss Mary A. Day the Librarian of the Gray Herbarium for the loan of books and copies of articles etc. Following the reference is a technical description usually enlarged and based on material in the College of Hawaii Herbarium only in such instances as when the plant is very common or has not been collected by the writer are descriptions of old authors quoted. As far as possible native names are given under most of the trees in italics as well as any legendary or other facts of sufficient interest together with habitat plant association etc. Of a number of trees of which nothing is known of a popular nature the technical side is enlarged upon especially in the family Rutaceae genus Pelea and Campanulaceae tribe Lobelioideae. The writer wishes here to acknowledge above all the kind assistance of Prof. Dr. Ignatz Urban of Berlin Prof. Le Comte of Paris Prof. Dr. A. Zahlbruckner of Vienna and Profs. H. L. Robinson and M. L. Fernald of Harvard in the loan of herbarium material mainly types for comparison without which the authenticity of many determinations would have been doubtful. This refers mainly to the tribe Lobelioideae of the family Campanulaceae one of the most intricate tribes found in this Islands. Islands Joseph Francis Charles Rock, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1913 edition. Excerpt: Pittosporaceae or white tube 10 to 12 mm or less lobes about 6 mm stamens nearly as long as the tube anthers linear sagittate pistil short ovary sessile oblong tomentose capsule globose-ovoid somewhat flattened the thick woody valves 2.5 mm wrinkled or rough or sometimes smooth seeds purple compressed and angled closely packed in two rows in each cell testa dull minutely tuberculate rugose A tree 20 feet in height with stiff stout ascending branches It is a somewhat variable species the inflorescence is not always terminal but also axillary and even cauline in specimens from Haleakala Maui The writer collected specimens of this species from the type locality southern slopes of Haleakala Maui where the tree is not at all common It also grows near Kaupo at an elevation of about 5000 feet The leaves in the writer's specimen are much larger than those figured by Asa Gray Hillebrand's var. S from Kau and Kona agrees well with the writer's material from Lanai The genus Pittosporum is exceedingly well represented on Lanai the species confertiflorum evidently being very variable as there are as many different forms as there are Pittosporum trees and one would be naming individual trees It is indeed puzzling the question of specific distinction in the Hawaiian Pittosporums thanks to the insects on which the plants depend for pollination Hillebrand's typical var. p occurs in nearly all the valleys of Lanai as Kaiholena Mahana Koele and also on the ridges It differs from the species in its smaller leaves and lanceolate sepals and is a small tree about 18 feet in height In some of the Lanai specimens the capsules are deeply wrinkled and quadrangular with perfectly flat valves 3 cm each way one

Seeking the Sacred Raven Mark Jerome Walters,2012-09-26 Will the Alala ever return to the wild A bird sacred to Hawaiians and a member of the raven family the Alala today survives only in captivity How the species once flourished how it has been driven to near extinction and how people struggled to save it is the gripping story of Seeking the Sacred Raven For years author Mark Jerome Walters has tracked the sacred bird s role in Hawaiian culture and the indomitable Alala s sad decline Trekking through Hawaii s rain forests high on Mauna Loa talking with biologists landowners and government officials he has woven an epic tale of missed opportunities and the best intentions gone awry A species that once numbered in the thousands is now limited to about 50 captive birds Seeking the Sacred Raven is as much about people and culture as it is about failed policies From the ancient Polynesians who first settled the island to Captain Cook in the 18th century to would be saviors of the Alala in the 1990s individuals with conflicting passions and priorities have shaped Hawaii and the fate of this dwindling cloud forest species Walters captures brilliantly the internecine politics among private landowners scientists environmental groups individuals and government agencies battling over the bird s habitat and protection It s only one species only one bird but Seeking the Sacred Raven illustrates vividly the many dimensions of species loss for the human as well as non human world
