A World of Giving Patricia L. Rosenfield, 2014-11-04 The age of international philanthropy is upon us Today many of America's most prominent foundations support institutions or programs abroad but few have been active on the global stage for as long as Carnegie Corporation of New York A World of Giving provides a thorough objective examination of the international activities of Carnegie Corporation one of America's oldest and most respected philanthropic institutions which was created by steel baron Andrew Carnegie in 1911 to support the advancement and diffusion of knowledge and understanding The book explains in detail the grantmaking process aimed at promoting understanding across cultures and research in many nations across the world A World of Giving highlights the vital importance of Carnegie Corporation's mission in guiding its work and the role of foundation presidents as thought and action leaders The presidents trustees and later on staff members are the human element that drives philanthropy and they are the lens through which to view the inner workings of philanthropic institutions with all of their accompanying strengths and limitations especially when embarking on international activities It also does not shy away from controversy including early missteps in Canada race and poverty issues in the 1930s and 1980s related to South Africa promotion of area studies affected by the McCarthy Era the critique of technical assistance in developing countries the century long failure to achieve international understanding on the part of

Americans and recent critiques by Australian historians of the Corporation's nation transforming work there This is a comprehensive review of one foundation's work on the international stage as well as a model for how philanthropy can be practiced in a deeply interconnected world where conflicts abound but progress can be spurred by thoughtful forward looking institutions following humanistic principles

Global Perspectives on Migration and Development Irena Omelaniuk, 2012-05-23 This volume is the first in a new Springer series to examine one of humanity's most pressing concerns global migration and its implications for development As population mobility grows in an ever more crowded world the Global Forum on Migration and Development GFMD has emerged as the most important global mechanism to deal with the urgent challenges it presents. This book explores fresh strategies proposed by the GFMD in its fourth year of operation in Mexico and beyond. Interrogating the relationship between migration and development, the papers advance the Global Forum's aims of reducing poverty and empowering low income families everywhere. In 2010 there were 214 million international migrants worldwide, nearly two and a half times the number in 1965. By 2050 international migration is likely to expand sharply in scale, reach, and complexity due to growing demographic disparities, environmental change, shifting global political and economic dynamics, technological innovations, and social networks. Migration can bring substantial gains to families in less developed countries, and mobile labor is an axiomatic feature of the global economy. Yet outward migration of skilled workers can seriously retard development at home and exert pressure on wages in host nations. Balancing these and other conflicting concerns requires the substantive and expert discourse offered in this book. Contributors discuss and propose concrete solutions to vital issues such as the debilitating costs of cross border labor recruitment and the provision of social and income protection for foreign contract workers. With suggestions on how to facilitate connections between transnational families and gender and family sensitive immigration regimes, this book aims to foster collaborative intergovernmental links as well as partnerships between governments, civil society, and international organizations. It shows how the GFMD can positively influence policy and institutional behavior while addressing wider systemic factors in protecting mobile workers.

Growing the Knowledge Base in Evaluation Jill Anne Chouinard, Isabelle Bourgeois, Courtney Amo, 2019-09-01

Evaluation use was identified by Henry and Mark (2003) as being the single most studied area in the field of evaluation. They refer with a sense of nostalgia to the golden age of research on use, perhaps almost implying that it came and went. Professor J. Bradley Cousins has had a longstanding and continuing commitment to advancing theory and practice regarding use through empirical research on evaluation and through the professional development of students and practitioners within North America and internationally. The important influence and impact of the contributions of Cousins and associates is the focus of this edited book. This book brings together a distinguished international group of authors to reflect on the areas of contribution of Professor Cousins and situate his work within contemporary areas of evaluation research and practice. Each chapter describes how the study and practice of evaluation has weaved its way through our understanding of organizational learning, participatory evaluation, and evaluation capacity building. The book concludes with a reflection by Professor Cousins himself on what these insights mean for the field of evaluation and what future areas of research and contribution can be planned for and anticipated.

Educating the Global Workforce for Public Health

Sanjay P. Zodpey, Roger A. Harrison, Michal Grivna, John R. Finnegan, Connie J. Evashwick, 2018-03-16 Good quality management of the health system demands a critical mass of health professionals with sound technical knowledge. The education that produces a workforce of appropriate size and skills is often a challenge in the delivery of quality health services. Incidentally, health professionals' education has not kept pace with the new emerging challenges. Recent globalization of health has further led to international migration of health professionals, thereby leading to cross-border recognition of health workers with an appropriate skill mix, knowledge, and competence. The Lancet Commission Report of 2010 highlighted the need to develop a common strategy at a global level for postgraduate medical, nursing, and public health education that reaches beyond the confines of national borders and the silos of individual professions. This vision would require a series of instructional and institutional reforms which should be guided by two proposed outcomes: transformative learning and interdependence in education. The purpose of this Research Topic is to increase the shared understanding of the current status of the education of the health workforce around the globe, particularly those working in the public health sector. With this foundation, further research and evaluation studies can then be done with a perspective that addresses global workforce issues impacting access, prevention, and care. The Elgar Companion to Health and the Sustainable Development Goals

Susannah H. Mayhew, Michael Hammer, 2025-02-12 This Companion explores the tension between the promise of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the realities of health and healthcare in a volatile and uncertain world wracked by climate change and conflict. Championing health as a pivotal public good, it presents solutions for improved access to health rooted in community empowerment and accountability of governance. Comparative Health Systems

James A. Johnson, Carleen Stoskopf, Leiyu Shi, 2017-03-02 The Second Edition of Comparative Health Systems: A Global Perspective offers new perspectives in health administration, public health, and public policy that address evidence-based approaches to health system improvement, systems thinking at the policy level, integrated information management, macro and micro innovation, and systems sustainability. Part I introduces foundational concepts including health and disease, policy, and economics. Two new chapters explore innovation and sustainability and the role and contributions of non-governmental organizations. In Part II, the health systems of 19 countries are each examined in their own chapter that carefully explores the country's geography and culture, the history of its health system, followed by a detailed evaluation of cost, quality, access, and innovation.
