Manpower, 1974 Expertise in Second Language Learning and Teaching K. Johnson, 2005-11-10 Understanding what constitutes expertise in language learning and teaching is important for theoretical reasons related to psycholinguistic and applied linguistic enquiry It also has many significant applications in practice particularly in relation to the training and practice of language teachers and improvements in students strategies of learning In this volume methodologies for establishing what constitutes expert practice are discussed and the contributions address the fields of listening reading writing speaking and communication strategies looking at common characteristics of the expert teacher and the expert learner

Learning Disabilities Pol Ghesquière, A. J. J. M. Ruijsenaars, 2005 Research on learning disabilities has known a tremendous growth the last 25 years Yet despite the progress that is made in diverse domains learning disabilities still stay a serious challenge to teaching and instruction In this book the authors try to link original research findings on learning disabilities with instructional methods and teaching practices The first part of the book brings together contributions about the cognitive metacognitive and socio emotional correlates of learning disabilities These factors generally form a core aspect of the challenge of learning disabilities to teaching and instruction The first three chapters concern the phenomenon of dyslexia Van den Broeck critically evaluates the disputable role of intelligence in the concept and definition of dyslexia Hutchinson Whiteley and Smith explore the role of cognitive linguistic skills in the early identification of reading problems in emergent bilingual children Van Ingelghem and colleagues study auditory temporal processing in children with dyslexia In chapter 4 Desoete and Roeyers summarize their research on metacognition in children with mathematics learning disabilities Finally Gadeyne Ghesquière and Onghena explore the relationship between academic achievement and behaviour problems The second part of this book goes deeper into research on intervention and instruction methods The first three chapters focus on reading problems Whitely and her colleagues try to analyze why some children do not benefit from early phonologically based interventions leading to implications for the development of early screening tools and intervention schemes for these non beneficiaries Van Kraaenord Rohl and Rivalland report findings of an Australian study examining the programs and strategies used to teach and intervene in Australian classrooms for students with learning problems Bouwer and Jordaan argue for the use of imaging as a learning support technique for children with dyslexia The last two chapters explore the differential effect of direct and guided instruction for children with arithmetic learning problems Kroesbergen and Van Luit focus on the acquisition and use of multiplication strategies Milo and Ruijsenaars do the same for addition and subtraction up to 100 After reading this book not all challenges of learning disabilities to teaching and instruction will be tackled But it surely can offer some contribution in getting away from some of them The authors hope it gives a lot of inspiration to the diverse audience we had in mind practitioners as well as researchers of different disciplines

Teaching and Learning in Lower Secondary Schools in the Era of PISA and TIMSS Kirsti Klette, Ole K. Bergem, Astrid Roe, 2015-08-03 This book explores teaching and learning in lower secondary classrooms in the three PISA domains science mathematics and reading Based on extensive video documentation from science math and reading classrooms in Norwegian secondary schooling it analyzes how offered and experienced teaching and learning opportunities in these three subject areas support students learning The in depth investigations of video documentation are combined with analysis of the Norwegian PISA results in order to understand how teaching and learning in science mathematics and reading can be improved Recent reviews indicate that instructional practice does make a difference to students learning and is more important than other factors including students socioeconomic background class size classroom climate and teachers experience and formal training This book opens the discussion on a European basis about contemporary challenges in teaching and learning in secondary schooling Norway as a test bed is particularly interesting due to its long tradition with national curricula and its unitary and non-streamed structure Furthermore ideas of educational progressivism and students active ways of working such as individualized teaching adapted teaching inquiry based teaching etc have for a long time been actively promoted within Norwegian educational policies The book draws on analyses that combine expertise in psychometrics and video based micro-genetic classroom studies with expertise in domain specific instruction math science and reading It feeds the conversation how issues of communication patterns are dealt with and made productive within different instructional formats and presents possibilities to compare and analyze instructional formats and discursive practices for students learning
