Perspectives on the Experience of Sudden, Unexpected Child Death Denise Turner,2017-10-27 This book combines autobiography and innovative narrative research to create an original psychosocial perspective on the often taboo subject of sudden unexpected child death Beginning with the author s own experience the book investigates manifold aspects of sudden unexpected child death including the professional rapid response contemporary cultural reactions to death theories of grieving child death inquiries and popular media reporting At the heart of the book are intimate personal stories drawn from unprecedented psychosocial research on this topic which combine to create a unique record of parent s experiences following the sudden and unexpected death of a child Additionally the book offers original guidance on the Biographic Narrative Interpretive methodology which extends knowledge of group data analysis The book will be of great methodological interest to the psychosocial community as well as to health and social care professionals and lay readers interested in both sudden unexpected child death and the wider field The AfterGrief Hope Edelman,2020 A validating new approach to the long term grieving process that explains why we feel stuck why that s normal and how shifting our perception of grief can help us grow from the New York Times bestselling author of Motherless Daughters This is perhaps one of the most important books about grief ever written It finally dispels the myth that we are all supposed to get over the death of a loved one Claire Bidwell Smith author of Anxiety The Missing Stage of Grief Aren't you over it yet Anyone who has experienced a major loss in their past knows this question We've spent years fielding versions of it both explicit and implied from family colleagues acquaintances and friends We recognize the subtle cues the slight eyebrow lift the soft startled Oh That long ago from those who wonder how an event so far in the past can still occupy so much precious mental and emotional real estate Because of the common but false assumption that grief should be time limited too many of us believe we're grieving wrong when sadness suddenly resurges sometimes months or even years after a loss The AfterGrief explains that the death of a loved one isn't something most of us get over get past put down or move beyond Grief is not an emotion to pass through on the way to feeling better Instead grief is in constant motion it is tidal easily and often reactivated by memories and sensory events and is re-triggered as we experience life transitions anniversaries and other losses Whether we want it to or not grief gets folded into our developing identities where it informs our thoughts hopes expectations behaviors and fears and we inevitably carry it forward into everything that follows Drawing on her own encounters with the ripple effects of early loss as well as on interviews with dozens of researchers therapists and regular people who've been bereaved New York Times bestselling author Hope Edelman offers profound advice for reassessing loss and adjusting the stories we tell ourselves about its impact on our identities With guidance for reframing a story of loss finding equilibrium within it and even experiencing renewed growth and purpose in its wake she demonstrates that though grief is a lifelong process it doesn't have to be a lifelong struggle

At Home with Grief Blake Paxton, 2018-01-19 What would you say to a deceased loved one if they could come back for one day What if you can't just move on from grief At Home with Grief Continued Bonds with the Deceased chronicles Blake Paxton's autoethnographic study of his continued relationship with his deceased mother In the 90s Silverman Klass and Nickman argued that after the death of a loved one the bond does not have to be broken and the bereaved can find many ways to connect with memories of the dead Building on their work many other bereavement scholars have discussed the importance of not treating these relationships as pathological and have suggested that more research is needed in this area of grief studies However very few studies have addressed the communal and everyday subjective experiences of continuing bonds with the deceased as well as how our relationship with our grief changes in the long term In this book Blake Paxton shows how a community in southern Illinois continues a relationship with one deceased individual more than ten years after her death Through this gripping autoethnographic account of his mother's struggles with a rare cancer her death and his struggles with sexuality he poses possibilities of what might happen when cultural prescriptions for grief are challenged and how continuing bonds with the dead may help us continue or restore broken bonds with the living

Revision Carolyn Ellis, 2016-07 This volume collects a dozen of Ellis's autoethnographic stories with a layering of new interpretations reflections and vignettes to her older work
