Prevention and Treatment of Delayed Ischaemic Dysfunction in Patients with Subarachnoid Haemorrhage Hans-Jürgen Reulen, Jacques Philippon, 2012-12-06 During the last meeting of the European Association of Neurosurgical Societies Barcelona 7-16 September 1987 a Symposium was devoted to the use of calcium antagonists in cerebral vasospasm As shown by its title Prevention and treatment of delayed ischaemic dysfunction in patients with subarachnoid haemorrhage an update papers presented at the Symposium covered a broad spectrum from some basic data on pathophysiology of subarachnoid haemorrhage SAH and delayed ischaemic dysfunction to the clinical use of nimodipine which has been largely documented among calcium inhibitors for its cerebrovascular properties This supplementum of Acta Neurochirurgica is based upon the papers presented Some articles however have been extended to take into account further results in order to present a broad view of the subject The Symposium started with two presentations concerning general aspects of SAH in the first one B Voldby reviewed the pathophysiological events following SAH if modifications of intracranial pressure ICP and decrease of cerebral blood flow CBF are the primary alterations metabolic changes particularly reduction in CMRO₂ contribute rapidly to disturbances of brain circulation A variety of mechanisms may be responsible for the neurological dysfunction most of them are directly related to the reduction in cerebral perfusion pressure CPP which may result in ischaemia This fall in CPP either due to elevation of ICP or reduction of mean arterial blood pressure is observed under different pathophysiological conditions discussed in the paper by A D Mendelow very least significantly challenging to treat by endovascular means due to the risk of coil protrusion and possibly parent vessel occlusion. However, this view is now outdated today and we will discuss the significant advancement in different flow diverters. The treatment of post subarachnoid hemorrhage vasospasm is mature now as this issue will highlight. In addition, intracranial atherosclerosis is still a prominent cause of stroke in various populations worldwide. This issue will summarize the challenges of risk factor modification and secondary stroke prevention by defining optimal methods. We will try to outline a new approach for intracranial angioplasty and stenting for stroke prevention. Finally, despite recent impressive increase in recanalization rates in acute ischemic stroke treatment, the clinical improvement rate has remained relatively stable. This article will discuss a new means of improving patient selections using the capillary index score (CIS). The future of our specialty relies heavily on better devices and on a deeper understanding of the disease process. The future is bright and we have already taken the first successful steps.

Plum and Posner's

Diagnosis and Treatment of Stupor and Coma, Jerome B. Posner MD, Clifford B. Saper MD, PhD, Nicholas D. Schiff MD, Jan Claassen MD, PhD, 2019-07-30. Plum and Posner's Diagnosis and Treatment of Stupor and Coma, 5th edition, is a major update of the classic work on diagnosing the cause of coma with the addition of completely new sections on treatment of comatose patients by Dr. Jan Claassen, the Director of the Neuro ICU at Columbia New York Presbyterian Hospital. The first chapter of the book provides an up-to-date review on the brain mechanisms that maintain a conscious state in humans and how lesions that damage these mechanisms cause loss of consciousness or coma. The second chapter reviews the neurological examination of the comatose patient, which provides the basis for determining whether the patient is suffering from a structural brain injury causing the coma or from a metabolic disorder of consciousness The third and fourth chapters review the pathophysiology of structural lesions causing coma and the specific disease states that result in coma Chapter five is a comprehensive treatment of the many causes of metabolic coma Chapter 6 review psychiatric causes of unresponsiveness and how to identify and treat them Chapters 7 and 8 review the overall emergency treatment of comatose patients followed by the treatment of specific causes of coma Chapter 9 examines the long term outcomes of coma including the minimally conscious state and the persistent vegetative state and how they can be distinguished and their implications for eventual useful recovery Chapter 10 reviews the topic of brain death and the standards for examination of a patient that are required to make the determination of brain death The final chapter 11 is by J J Fins a medical ethicist who was invited by the other authors to write an essay on the ethics of diagnosis and treatment of patients who by definition have no way to approve of or communicate about their wishes While providing detailed background for neurological and neurosurgical specialists the practical nature of the material in this book has found its greatest use among Internists Emergency Medicine and Intensive Care specialists who deal with comatose patients frequently but who may not have had extensive neurological training
