

The Humble Spud

Ahh the potato – whether boiled, baked, fried or roasted, they are the perfect accompaniment to any meal. They are the understated superstar of our plates and the food which powers a nation. What could be more British than the crispy roast potato in a Sunday Roast; the fat, salty chips in a seaside fish 'n' chip lunch; or the mash in your bangers and mash?

Ahem.

Yes, can I help you?

It's just that...well...

Come on, spit it out.

...they're from South America.

What?! Preposterous. I've got them in my garden. Dug them up myself.

Oh yes, I wouldn't doubt it for a second but let's just say that they didn't exactly originate from Britain.

Potatoes are from South America?

They reckon the first potatoes were from Lake Titicaca in the Andes.

You've made that up. Lake Titicaca?! Is that anywhere near Narnia? South of Neverland, perhaps? Due west from Hogwarts?

Nope – it's definitely a real place. It's the highest lake in the world in fact. It is up in the Andes between Peru and Bolivia. They've had potatoes there for thousands of years believe it or not. They started domesticating them about 7000 years ago or thereabouts.

You're making that up. You domesticate cats or horses - not plants. Can I just enjoy my bag of crisps in peace now?

Some plants are domesticated actually. Let's just say it means they are farmed or cultivated. The hunter gatherers in the Andes started farming them in the mountains. The Incan civilisation was pretty much built on potatoes – as in, they ate a lot of them...not, you know, used them to build with.

The Incas?

Yes – the vast empire that ruled over a big part of South America from about 1400 to 1533. They lasted up until the Spanish came along looking for gold, land and riches. They got potatoes added to the bargain – not that they appreciated them much at first.

Derek Mahon: A Retrospective Nicholas Grene, Tom Walker, 2024-09-17 Derek Mahon 1941 2020 is widely recognized as one of the most important Irish poets of his generation

This collection of new critical essays offers an important retrospective assessment of the nature of his poetic achievement. Bringing together many leading scholars of modern and contemporary Irish poetry including a notable number of accomplished poet critics, its contributors range widely across Mahon's body of work. Their essays offer fresh considerations of the biographical, geographical, and literary contexts that shaped his poetic voice. This includes paying attention not only to more familiar influences but also to previously little considered interlocutors. The stylistic and formal achievement of his voice is re-evaluated in ways that range from attentive close readings to considerations of his controversial practice of self-revision and his engagements with music and experiments in translation. The politics of a poet often misleadingly considered apolitical are also reframed to take in the engagements of his early work through to the ecocritical commitment of his later poetry. Indeed, a notable aspect of this book is the consideration it gives to all the phases of Mahon's career. As a whole, the collection opens up many new ways of reading and understanding Mahon's important body of work. Fusion Pauline Cheung, 2020

Against the Grain Richard Manning, 2005-02-01 In this provocative wide ranging book Against the Grain Richard Manning offers a dramatically revisionist view of recent human evolution beginning with the vast increase in brain size that set us apart from our primate relatives and brought an accompanying increase in our need for nourishment For 290 000 years we managed to meet that need as hunter gatherers a state in which Manning believes we were at our most human at our smartest strongest most sensually alive But our reliance on food made a secure supply deeply attractive and eventually we embarked upon the agricultural experiment that has been the history of our past 10 000 years The evolutionary road is littered with failed experiments however and Manning suggests that agriculture as we have practiced it runs against both our grain and nature's Drawing on the work of anthropologists biologists archaeologists and philosophers along with his own travels he argues that not only our ecological ills overpopulation erosion pollution but our social and emotional malaise are rooted in the devil's bargain we made in our not so distant past And he offers personal achievable ways we might re contour the path we have taken to resurrect what is most sustainable and sustaining in our own nature and the planet's
