The Illustrated Portrait Of Canterbury:

The Illustrated Portrait of Canterbury John Boyle, 1988 A Collection of Portraits to Illustrate Granger's Biog. Hist. of England and Noble's Continuation to Granger, 1820 Book Catalogues, 1870 English Literature, an Illustrated Record: From the beginnings to the age of Henry VIII Richard Garnett, 1903 The Bibliographer's Manual of English Literature William Thomas Lowndes, 1860 Henry IV B. Bevan, 2016-04-30

Henry of Bolingbroke was one of the most important noblemen of the later fourteenth century. Brave, chivalrous and cultured, a talented musician, he excelled at the jousts held at his cousin Richard II's Court, acquiring military experience at Radcot Bridge in Oxfordshire and later fighting with the Teutonic Knights in Prussia. A great medieval traveller, he visited Königsberg as Earl of Derby, travelling to Danzig, Prague and later Venice and Jerusalem. Bitterly opposed to Richard II's favourites, Bolingbroke, as one of the Lords Appellant, played a vital part. Henry's most controversial actions were the deposition of Richard II in 1399 and the execution of Richard Scrope, Archbishop of York, after he had usurped Richard's throne. As Henry IV, an usurper, the King knew little peace, incessantly engrossed as he was in preserving his throne, and the French and Scots never allowed him to forget his usurpation. For many years he fought a savage and frustrating war against the great Welsh rebel Owain Glyndŵr but defeated the immortal Harry Percy, Hotspur, at the Battle of Shrewsbury in 1403. In his relations with his Parliaments, Henry showed acumen and praiseworthy restraint, unlike his predecessor who was determined to be an absolute King. His short reign was remarkable for the development of Parliament.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica Day Otis Kellogg, Thomas Spencer Baynes, William Robertson Smith, 1902 Portraits, Painters, and Publics in Provincial England 1540-1640 Robert Tittler, 2013-09-05

In this, the first comprehensive study of post-Reformation provincial English portraiture, Robert Tittler investigates the growing affinity for secular portraiture in Tudor and early Stuart England, a cultural and social phenomenon which can be said to have produced a public for that genre. He breaks new ground in placing portrait patronage and production in this era in the broad social and cultural context of post-Reformation England and in distinguishing between native English provincial portraiture, which was often highly vernacular, and foreign-influenced portraiture of the court and metropolis, which tended towards the formal and polite. Tittler describes the burgeoning public for portraiture of this era as more than the familiar court and London-based presence but rather as a phenomenon which was surprisingly widespread, both socially and geographically throughout the realm. He suggests that provincial portraiture differed from the mainstream cosmopolitan portraiture of the day in its workmanship, materials, inspirations and even vocabulary, showing how its native English roots continued to guide its production. Innovative chapters consider the aims and vocabulary of English provincial portraiture, the relationship of portraiture and heraldry, the painter's occupation in provincial as opposed to metropolitan England, and the contrasting availability of materials and training in both provincial and metropolitan areas. The work as a whole contributes to both art history and social history; it speaks to admirers and collectors of painting as well as to curators.

Owen-Crocker,2023-05-31

This collection of fifteen papers ranges from the author's initial interest in the Tapestry as a source of information on early medieval dress through to her startling recognition of the embroidery's sophisticated narrative structure. Developing the work of previous authors who had identified graphic models for some of the images she argues that not just the images themselves but the contexts from which they were drawn should be taken in to account in reading the messages of the Tapestry. In further investigating the minds and hands behind this the largest non architectural artefact surviving from the Middle Ages she ranges over the seams the embroidery stitches the language and artistry of the inscription the potential significance of borders and the gestures of the figures in the main register always scrutinising detail informatively. She identifies an over riding conception and house style in the Tapestry but also sees different hands at work in both needlecraft and graphics. Most intriguingly she recognises a sub contractor with a Roman source and a clownish wit.
