Swinnen, 2011-10-27 Beer has been consumed across the globe for centuries and was the drink of choice in many ancient societies Today it is the most important alcoholic drink worldwide in terms of volume and value The largest brewing companies have developed into global multinationals and the beer market has enjoyed strong growth in emerging economies but there has been a substantial decline of beer consumption in traditional markets and a shift to new products There is close interaction between governments and markets in the beer industry For centuries taxes on beer or its raw materials have been a major source of tax revenue and governments have regulated the beer industry for reasons related to quality health and competition This book is the first economic analysis of the beer market and brewing industry The introduction provides an economic history of beer from monasteries in the early Middle Ages to the recent microbrewery movement whilst other chapters consider whether people drink more beer during recessions the effect of television on local breweries and what makes a country a beer drinking nation It comprises a comprehensive and unique set of economic research and analysis on the economics of beer and brewing and covers economic history and development supply and demand trade and investment geography and scale economies technology and innovation health and nutrition quantity and quality industrial organization and competition taxation and regulation and regional beer market developments Teachers and Texts Michael W.

Mao to Market Andrew H. Wedeman,2003-07-10 Andrew Wedemen argues that China succeeded in moving from a Maoist command economy to a market economy because the central government failed to prevent local governments from forcing prices to market levels Having partially decontrolled the economy in the early 1980s economic reformers balked at price reform opting instead for a hybrid system wherein commodities had two prices one fixed and one floating Depressed fixed prices led to resource wars as localities battled each other for control over undervalued commodities while inflated consumer goods prices fuelled a headlong investment boom that saturated markets and led to the erection of import barriers Although local rent seeking and protectionism appeared to carve up the economy in reality they had not only pushed prices to market levels and cleared the way for sweeping reforms in the 1980s they had also pushed China past the pitfalls of reform that entrapped other socialist economies Industrial Development of Taiwan Gee San,Patarapong Intarakumnerd,2021-04-19
