The Huntsman of the South (Classic Reprint) Alexander Hunter,2017-12-24 Excerpt from The Huntsman of the South IT is the inexorable law of Nature that all living creatures prey upon one another By beak talons and claw the fight was commenced and it will end only when this world is no more To say that sporting is a cruel pastime is to ignore the fact that all fin fur and feather batten upon one another and if the rifle or gun did not end their days they would be killed anyway I think the greatest gift Nature can bestow upon a child is to endow him with a love of the forest the field the stream and to infect his blood with a longing for field sports It will make the boy and the man stronger healthier and happier My sporting days commenced many years ago on a big plantation bordering the Potomac River Game was plentiful in those days when the muzzle loader was king and it was a woeful day for sportsman and game alike when the breech loader and the pump gun were invented About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
