

The Idea of Natural Inequality*

The Auguste Comte Memorial Lecture, 1979

The mind of man is far from the nature of a clear and equal glass, wherein the beams of things should reflect according to their true incidence: nay, it is rather like an enchanted glass, full of superstition and imposture . . .

FRANCIS BACON

When we talk about inequality among men we mean various things. We mean in one sense that human beings are unequally placed, that they have unequal opportunities and that they are unequally rewarded; this kind of inequality is easily recognized and can easily be shown to exist in any society, simple or complex, past or present. But we also mean in another sense that men and women have unequal abilities, that they are unequally endowed, and also perhaps that they are of unequal worth; the proof of this kind of inequality is difficult, one might say impossible.

Those who make the case for natural inequality will readily concede that people sometimes appear to be unequally endowed because in fact the opportunities available to them are unequal. No society is perfect, and in every society some individuals suffer more than others from a variety of contingent circumstances. But, they will go on to argue, this is not all that there is to it. For, according to them, it should be possible to remove the existing distortions or imperfections, at least in principle, and when this is done we will still be left with certain irreducible inequalities of endowment. Viewed in this light

* A first sketch of the argument of this essay was presented at a conference in Burg Wartenstein organized by the Wenner-Gren Foundation which I would like to thank for its hospitality on that occasion. I am grateful to Marshall Sahlins for his comments then. I am grateful also to Meyer Fortes, Edmund Leach and Alan Macfarlane for their patience and care in reading and commenting on earlier drafts of this essay.

Critical Craft Clare M. Wilkinson-Weber, Alicia Ory DeNicola, 2020-05-26 From Oaxacan wood carvings to dessert kitchens in provincial France Critical Craft presents thirteen ethnographies which examine what defines and makes craft in a wide variety of practices from around the world Challenging the conventional understanding of craft as a survival a revival or something that resists capitalism the book turns instead to the designers DIY enthusiasts traditional artisans and technical programmers who consider their labor to be craft in order to comprehend how they make sense of it The authors ethnographic studies focus on the individuals and communities who claim a practice as their own bypassing the question of craft survival to ask how and why activities termed craft are mobilized and reproduced Moving beyond regional studies of heritage artisanship the authors suggest that ideas of craft are by definition part of a larger cosmopolitan dialogue of power and identity By paying careful attention to these sometimes conflicting voices this collection shows that there is great flexibility in terms of which activities are labelled craft In fact there are many related ideas of craft and these shape distinct engagements with materials people and the economy Case studies from countries including Mexico Nigeria India Taiwan the Philippines and France draw together evidence based on linguistics microsociology and participant observation to explore the shifting terrain on which those engaged in craft are operating What emerges is a fascinating picture which shows how claims about craft are an integral part of contemporary global change

Tenacious Ties Sudeshna Chaki, 2025-06 Based on an in depth ethnographic investigation conducted in the western Indian town of Palghar the book explores the emergence functioning and discontinuity of small scale enterprises together with the historical and social processes that underlie them It captures the multiplicity of values that become intertwined with the everyday workings of small businesses and investigates how values and relationships of kinship and community influence economic decision making
