

International Technology Transfer (ITT)

A world map with a yellow background and blue outlines of continents. Overlaid on the map are numerous blue arrows of varying thicknesses, representing the flow of international technology transfer (ITT). The arrows originate from various points across the globe, including North America, Europe, and Asia, and point towards other regions. Some arrows are thick and prominent, while others are thin and faint. The arrows indicate a complex, interconnected network of technology transfer across the world.
