was a tumbled expanse of forest clothed hills cloven by winding gorges where the sun never penetrated and to the right a precipice overlooked the river and between it and the hills just spoken of lay afar reaching plain dotted with little homesteads nested among orchards and shade trees The whole region for leagues around was the hereditary property of a prince whose servants kept the castle always in perfect condition for occupancy but neither he nor his family came there oftener than once in five years When they came it was as if the lord of the world had arrived and had brought all the glories of its kingdoms along and when they went they left a calm behind which was like the deep sleep which follows an orgy Eseldorf was a paradise for us boys We were not overmuch pestered with schooling Mainly we were trained to be good Christians to revere the Virgin the Church and the saints above everything Beyond these matters we were not required to know much and in fact not allowed to Knowledge was not good for the common people and could make them discontented with the lot which God had appointed for them and God would not endure discontentment with His plans We had two priests One of them Father Adolf was a very zealous and strenuous priest much considered There may have been better priests in some ways than Father Adolf but there was never one in our commune who was held in more solemn and awful respect This was because he had absolutely no fear of the Devil He was the only Christian I have ever known of whom that could be truly said People stood in deep dread of him on that account for they thought that there must be something supernatural about him else he could not be so bold and so confident All men speak in bitter disapproval of the Devil but they do it reverently not flippantly but Father Adolf's way was very different he called him by every name he could lay his tongue to and it made everyone shudder that heard him and often he would even speak of him scornfully and scoffingly then the people crossed themselves and went quickly out of his presence fearing that something fearful might happen Father Adolf had actually met Satan face to face more than once and defied him This was known to be so Father Adolf said it himself He never made any secret of it but spoke it right out And that he was speaking true there was proof in at least one instance for on that occasion he quarreled with the enemy and intrepidly threw his bottle at him and there upon the wall of his study
