Narnia, Middle-Earth and The Kingdom of God Mark Worthing,2016-12-29 Narnia Middle Earth and the Kingdom of God tells the story of fantasy literature within the context of its complex relationship with the Christian tradition In this book Worthing looks at early influences on the genre including European fairy tales and folklore Northern and classical mythology and Christian allegory He also explores the contours of a variety of fantasy worlds from MacDonald's Faerie Land, Lewis' Narnia and Tolkien's Middle Earth to LeGuin's Earthsea, Pratchett's Discworld and Rowling's world of Hogwarts In these worlds and many more we discover themes such as the battle between good and evil, the question of the existence of God and the problem of suffering Fantasy fans of all religious persuasions will find in this book a delightful and informative exploration of the rich history and profound themes of the fantasy genre Arapaho Women's Quillwork Jeffrey D.

Anderson, 2013-02-11 More than a hundred years ago anthropologists and other researchers collected and studied hundreds of examples of quillwork once created by Arapaho women Since that time however other types of Plains Indian art such as beadwork and male art forms have received greater attention In Arapaho Women's Quillwork Jeffrey D Anderson brings this distinctly female art form out of the darkness and into its rightful spotlight within the realms of both art history and anthropology Beautifully illustrated with more than 50 color and black and white images this book is the first comprehensive examination of quillwork within Arapaho ritualized traditions Until the early twentieth century and the disruption of removal porcupine quillwork was practiced by many indigenous cultures throughout North America For Arapahos quillwork played a central role in religious life within their most ancient and sacred traditions Quillwork was manifest in all life transitions and appeared on paraphernalia for almost all Arapaho ceremonies Its designs and the meanings they carried were present on many objects used in everyday life such as cradles, robes, leanback covers, moccasins, pillows and tipi ornaments, liners and doors Anderson demonstrates how through the action of creating quillwork Arapaho women became central participants in ritual life often studied as the exclusive domain of men He also shows how quillwork challenges predominant Western concepts of art and creativity adhering to sacred patterns passed down through generations of women it emphasized not individual creativity but meticulous repetition and social connectivity an approach foreign to many outside observers Drawing on the foundational writings of early nineteenth century ethnographers, extensive fieldwork conducted with Northern Arapahos and careful analysis of museum collections Arapaho Women's Quillwork masterfully shows the importance of this unique art form to Arapaho life and honors the devotion of the artists who maintained this tradition for so many generations The Storm Weaver & the Sand Sean Williams, 2014-05-27

Antal,2023-09-28 a useful addition to the literature of the changing character of war Its scoping and focus and its application of the identified disruptors to current challenges offer immediate insights for today s commanders and defence policymakers The Wavell Room The nature of war is constant change We live in an era of exponential technological acceleration which is transforming how wars are waged Today the battlespace is transparent multi domain sensors can see anything and long range precision fire can target everything that is observed Autonomous weapons can be unleashed into the battlespace and attack any target from above hitting the weakest point of tanks and armored vehicles The velocity of war is hyper fast Battle shock is the operational informational and organizational paralysis induced by the rapid convergence of key disrupters in the battlespace It occurs when the tempo of operations is so fast and the means so overwhelming that the enemy cannot think decide or act in time Hit with too many attacks in multiple domains all occurring simultaneously the enemy is paralyzed In short the keys to decisive victory in war is to generate battle shock Imagine a peer fight against Communist China a new war in Europe against a resurgent Russia or a conflict against Iran in the Middle East How can our forces survive an enemy first strike in these circumstances Can we adapt to the ever accelerating tempo of war Will our forces be able to mask from enemy sensors How will leaders execute command and control in a degraded communications environment Will our command posts survive Will our commanders see and understand what is happening in order to plan decide and act in real time This book addresses these tough questions and more
