The Morality Of Punishment:

The Morality of Punishment (Routledge Revivals) Alfred C Ewing, 2013-02-01 First published in 1929 this book explores the crucial ethical question of the objects and the justification of punishment Dr A C Ewing considers both the retributive theory and the deterrent theory on the subject whilst remaining commendably unprejudiced The book examines the views which emphasize the reformation of the offender and the education of the community as objects of punishment It also deals with a theory of reward as a compliment to a theory of punishment Dr Ewing s treatment of the topics is philosophical yet he takes in to account the practical considerations that should determine the nature and the amount of the punishment to be inflicted in different types of cases This book will be of great interest to students of philosophy teachers and those who are interested in the concrete problems of punishment by the state It is an original contribution to the study of a subject of great theoretical and practical importance The Morality of Punishment with Some Suggestions for a General Theory of Ethics Alfred Cyril Ewing, 1929

Conflict and Resolution: The Ethics of Forgiveness, Revenge, and Punishment Paula Satne, Krisanna M. Scheiter, 2022-05-05 Given the current climate of political division and global conflict it is not surprising that there has been an increasing interest in how we ought to respond to perceived wrongdoing both personal and political In this volume top scholars from around the world contribute all new original essays on the ethics of forgiveness revenge and punishment This book draws on both historical and contemporary debates in order to answer important questions about the nature of forgiveness the power of apology the relationship between punishment and revenge the path to reconciliation the morality of blame and the role of forgiveness in political conflict Chapter 16 is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link springer.com The Ethics of Social Punishment Linda Radzik, Christopher Bennett, Glen Pettigrove, George Sher, 2020-11-12 How do we punish others socially and should we do so In her 2018 Descartes Lectures for Tilburg University Linda Radzik explores the informal methods ordinary people use to enforce moral norms such as telling people off boycotting businesses and publicly shaming wrongdoers on social media Over three lectures Radzik develops an account of what social punishment is why it is sometimes permissible and when it must be withheld She argues that the proper aim of social punishment is to put moral pressure on wrongdoers to make amends Yet the permissibility of applying such pressure turns on the tension between individual desert and social good as well as the possession of an authority to punish Responses from Christopher Bennett George Sher and Glen Pettigrove challenge Radzik's account of social punishment while also offering alternative perspectives on the possible meanings of our responses to wrongdoing Radzik replies in the closing essay The Ethics of Capital Punishment Matthew H. Kramer, 2011-12-15 Taking a fresh look at a central controversy in criminal law theory The Ethics of Capital Punishment presents a rationale for the death penalty grounded in a theory of the nature of evil and the nature of defilement Original unsettling and deeply controversial it will be an essential reference point for future debates on the subject

Moral Order and Progress Samuel Alexander, 1889 The Morality of Punishment. With Some Suggestions for a General Theory of Ethics, Etc Alfred Cyril EWING, 1929 The Moral Punishment Instinct Jan-Willem van Prooijen, 2017-12-19 Why do we universally punish offenders This book proposes that people possess a moral punish instinct a hard wired tendency to aggress against those who violate the norms of their group This instinct is reflected in how punishment originates from moral emotions stimulates cooperation and shapes the social life of human beings The moral criterion Hastings Rashdall, 1907 The Ethics of Proportionate Punishment Jesper Ryberg, 2007-11-10 The philosophical discussion of state punishment is well on in years In contrast with a large number of ethical problems which are concerned with right and wrong in relation to a narrowly specified area of human life and practice and which have at least since the early 70s been regarded as a legitimate part of philosophical thinking constituting the area of applied ethics reflections on punishment can be traced much further back in the history of western philosophy This is not surprising That the state mandated infliction of death suffering or deprivation on citizens should be met with hesitation from which ethical reflections may depart seems obvious Such a practice certainly calls for some persuasive justification It is therefore natural that reflective minds have for a long time devoted attention to punishment and that the question of how a penal system can be justified has constituted the central question in philosophical discussion Though it would certainly be an exaggeration to claim that the justification question is the only aspect of punishment with which philosophers have been concerned there has in most periods been a clear tendency to regard this as the cardinal issue Comparatively much less attention has been devoted to the more precise questions of how and how much criminals should be punished for their respective wrong doings This may of course be due to several reasons Ethics: The principles of morality and the departments of the moral life
