Jim Crow and the Soul. African American Vernacular English (AAVE) in Soul Music During the 1960s and 1970s Patrick Husfeldt, 2020-06-09 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2016 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 1.3 Christian Albrechts University of Kiel language English abstract The question that will be addressed in this thesis is whether dialect choice in soul music from Memphis and Detroit was with regard to commercial success stronger than the mostly homogeneous character of African American Vernacular English AAVE across all regions of the US A detailed linguistic analysis of a selection of songs from Motown and Stax will try to investigate the extent to which that artists from Detroit did adapt their language habits to their surrounding white fellow citizens This might be even more interesting for northern blacks who moved away from their dialect roots in the South With respect to a separation from the white population which can at least be assumed for the artists childhood and early adulthood it appears necessary to look at certain features that were either kept or lost In addition the analysis will try to connect the commercial success of all included songs and artists to the language habits of the performers First some background for this paper s study will be provided including the social implications of AAVE and the reference studies for the analysis Then the relevant phonological and grammatical variables will be listed and explained These variables will be with regard to the Motown and Stax data sets analyzed in detail Finally the interpretation of the results will try to find an answer to the thesis of this paper
