Differentiated book It has a historical context with research of the time Sonnets from the Portuguese is a collection of love poems by the English writer Elizabeth Barrett Browning 1806 1861 published within the 1850 anthology Poems Poems The Portuguese Sonnets cycle was written between 1845 and 1846 and consists of 44 magnificent sonnets probably the best love poems by Elizabeth Barrett Browning It is said that at the beginning Elizabeth Barrett Browning was reluctant to publish the collection considering it too personal However her husband the poet Robert Browning insisted that it was the best English poetic cycle since William Shakespeare's sonnets and finally convinced her to publish it. All the poems of Sonnets from the Portuguese reflect the sentimental relationship between Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Robert Browning. To soften the intimate character of the work and especially to hide their identities as main sources of the poems, the author decided to give her an ambiguous title as if they were actually translations of Portuguese sonnets. The book was finally titled Sonnets from the Portuguese. The play was effective since for many years it was thought that those love sonnets had really been translated from Portuguese.

Sonnets from the Portuguese (Unabridged) Elizabeth Barrett Browning, 2012-12-27. A prime candidate for Poet Laureate of the United Kingdom, Elizabeth Barrett Browning was just as famous for her relationship with Robert Browning as for her work. Breaking through in a field that had previously been dominated by men, she was mentioned on terms equal with contemporaries like her husband and William Wordsworth. In fairness, Elizabeth Browning was never in particularly good health as an adult and would die of an unidentified illness just eleven years after Tennyson's appointment. Though hampered by poor health, personal tragedies, and conflict with her father, she battled through to create a body of work that is still widely read today. Invigorated by bright emotions as well as social awareness, Browning's work is thoughtful and mature. The famed series of poems included in this book were written to her husband, Robert Browning.
