Sound Like Thunder:

Sounds Like Life Janis B. Nuckolls,1996-04-18 Sound symbolism occurs when words resemble the sounds associated with the phenomena they attempt to describe rather than an arbitrary representation For example the word raven is arbitrary in that it does not resemble a raven cuckoo however is sound symbolic in that it resembles the bird s call In Sounds Like Life Janis Nuckolls studies the occurrence of sound symbolic words in Pastaza Quechua a dialect of Quechua which is spoken in eastern Ecuador The use of sound symbolic words is much more prevalent in Pastaza Quechua than in any other language and they symbolize a wider range of sensory perceptions including sounds rhythms and visual patterns Nuckolls uses discourse data from everyday contexts to demonstrate the Quechua speakers elaborate schematic perceptual structure to describe experience through sound symbolic language With words for contact with a surface opening and closing falling sudden realizations and moving through water and space Nuckolls finds that sound symbolism is integral to the Quechua speakers way of thinking about and expressing their experience of the world *Sound. North America by economic motivations the landscape over which they plied their trade was punctuated by sound shouting singing dancing gunpowder rattles jingles drums fiddles and very occasionally bagpipes Fur trade interactions were in a word noisy Daniel Laxer unearths traces of music performance and other intangible cultural phenomena long since silenced allowing us to hear the fur trade for the first time Listening to the Fur Trade uses the written record oral history and material culture to reveal histories of sound and music in an era before sound recording The trading post was a noisy nexus populated by a polyglot crowd of highly mobile people from different national linguistic religious cultural and class backgrounds They found ways to interact every time they met and facilitating material interests and survival went beyond the simple exchange of goods Trust and good relations often entailed gift giving reciprocity was performed with dances songs and firearm salutes

Indigenous protocols of ceremony and treaty making were widely adopted by fur traders who supplied materials and technologies that sometimes changed how these ceremonies sounded Within trading companies masters and servants were on opposite ends of the social ladder but shared songs in the canoes and lively dances during the long winters at the trading posts While the fur trade was propelled by economic and political interests Listening to the Fur Trade uncovers the songs and ceremonies of First Nations people the paddling songs of the voyageurs and the fiddle music and step dancing at the trading posts that provided its pulse
