European Powers in the First World War Spencer Tucker, 2018-12-07 First published in 1996 The First World War was the single most important event of the twentieth century This volume concentrates on non U S aspects of the conflict Organized alphabetically its more than 600 detailed entries offer information and insight on such subjects as the causes of the conflict major battles and campaigns weapons systems including military aviation chemical warfare the submarine and the tank and the terms of the peace Some 350 biographies provide information on the roles played in the conflict by generals admirals and civilian leaders There are also biographies of individuals who were shaped by the war such as Charles De Gaulle Adolf Hitler Benito Mussolini and Joseph Stalin essays on each of the countries involved in the conflict new appraisals of such subjects as military medicine and artillery tactics and essays on such diverse subjects as art literature and music in the war Each entry has references for additional reading and a subject index provides easy access The volume is an excellent reference source for scholar and neophyte alike At the doors of lexical access: The importance of the first 250 milliseconds in reading Jon Andoni Dunabeitia,Nicola Molinaro,2014-09-30 Correct word identification and processing is a prerequisite for accurate reading and decades of psycholinguistic and neuroscientific research have shown that the magical moments of visual word recognition are short lived and markedly fast The time window in which a given letter string passes from being a mere sequence of printed curves and strokes to acquiring the word status takes around one third of a second In a few hundred milliseconds a skilled reader recognizes an isolated word and carries out a number of underlying processes such as the encoding of letter position and letter identity and lexico semantic information retrieval However the precise manner and order in which these processes occur or co occur is a matter of contention subject to empirical research There s no agreement regarding the precise timing of some of the essential processes that guide visual word processing such as precise letter identification letter position assignment or sub word unit processing bigrams trigrams syllables morphemes among others Which is the sequence of processes that lead to lexical access How do these and other processes interact with each other during the early moments of word processing Do these processes occur in a serial fashion or do they take place in parallel Are these processes subject to mutual interaction principles Is feedback allowed for within the earliest stages of word identification And ultimately when does the reader s brain effectively identify a given word A vast number of questions remain open and this Research Topic will cover some of them giving the readership the opportunity to understand how the scientific community faces the problem of modeling the early stages of word identification according to the latest neuroscientific findings The present Research Topic aimed to combine recent experimental evidence on early word processing from different techniques together with comprehensive reviews of the current work directions in order to create a landmark forum in which experts in the field defined the state of the art and future directions We were willing to receive submissions of empirical as well as theoretical and review articles based on different computational and neuroscience oriented methodologies We especially encouraged researchers primarily using electrophysiological or magnetoencephalographic techniques as well as eye tracking to participate given that these techniques provide us with the opportunity to uncover the mysteries of lexical access allowing for a fine grained time course analysis The main focus of interest concerned the processes that are held within the initial 250 300 milliseconds after word presentation covering areas that link basic visuo attentional systems with linguistic mechanisms Ictacs 2006 - Proceedings Of The First International Conference On Theories And Applications Of Computer Science 2006 Duong Anh Duc,Thuy Thi Bich Dong,Tu-bao Ho,Dinh Thuc Nguyen,2006-12-29 This volume brings together many contributions from leading research scientists engineers and

Soviet Historians and Perestroika: The First Phase Donald J. Raleigh, 2016-07-22 The Soviet historical profession is in ferment For decades it was relegated to the task of obfuscating the past gilding the status quo and papering over the blank spots in Soviet history events that defied even the most brazen attempts at falsification Today it is engaged in an often painful process of self examination Initially rather timid the internal discussion was soon propelled by external events the scuttling of history textbooks official disclosures of formerly classified facts and the explosion of candour in the depictions of the past in memoirs journalistic writing and fiction This volume gives voice to the lead actors in the first phase of this process the senior historians their journalistic challengers and those charged with responsibility for the institutions of research training and publication in the field of history
