During the COVID 19 pandemic many people had to cope with isolation due to lockdown policies that forced them to engage in fewer social activities. People were confined to the small space of their dwellings and felt constrained and socially isolated and deprived of meaningful social interaction and affection which caused stress and anxiety. Several initiatives were put in place to help diminish the effects of isolation such as those involving literature either through writing or reading. Managing Pandemic Isolation With Literature as Therapy explains the positive medical and psychological effects of literature and writing during a pandemic at a time when isolation prevented people from engaging with others socially. Covering topics such as clinical psychology, brain neurology and stress, this reference work is ideal for psychologists, medical professionals, policymakers, government officials, researchers, scholars, academicians, practitioners, instructors and students.      Journal of the Bath and West of England Society for the Encouragement of Agriculture, Arts, Manufactures, and Commerce Bath and West and Southern Counties Society, Bath and West of England Society, 1853      Autumn in the Spring,      Investigation of So-called "rackets".
