The Oxford Handbook of African Archaeology Peter Mitchell, Paul Lane, 2013-07-04 Africa has the longest and arguably the most diverse archaeological record of any of the continents It is where the human lineage first evolved and from where Homo sapiens spread across the rest of the world Later it witnessed novel experiments in food production and unique trajectories to urbanism and the organisation of large communities that were not always structured along strictly hierarchical lines Millennia of engagement with societies in other parts of the world confirm Africa's active participation in the construction of the modern world while the richness of its history ethnography and linguistics provide unusually powerful opportunities for constructing interdisciplinary narratives of Africa's past This Handbook provides a comprehensive and up to date synthesis of African archaeology covering the entirety of the continent's past from the beginnings of human evolution to the archaeological legacy of European colonialism As well as covering almost all periods and regions of the continent it includes a mixture of key methodological and theoretical issues and debates and situates the subject's contemporary practice within the discipline's history and the infrastructural challenges now facing its practitioners Bringing together essays on all these themes from over seventy contributors many of them living and working in Africa it offers a highly accessible contemporary account of the subject for use by scholars and students of not only archaeology but also history anthropology and other disciplines

The Evolution of Modern Humans in Africa Pamela R. Willoughby, 2007 Pamela Willoughby provides a wide ranging synthesis of current knowledge about the evolution of fully modern humans in Africa during the Middle Palaeolithic Middle Stone Age According to most scholars our modern ancestors first emerged in Africa and then spread throughout the habitable world Willoughby brings evidence from mitochondrial DNA ancient fossils and archaeological remains including her own research in Tanzania to bear on questions regarding the place of human species in nature the specific origins of Homo Sapiens and the dispersal of these modern humans throughout Africa and around the globe She confronts straightforwardly the problems of dating the earliest modern humans and she discusses the various alternative models of modern human origins which will be debated for years to come The Evolution of Modern Humans in Africa is a compelling thought provoking book for both students and scholars
